Miss Clipper's

Anecdotes, Personalities and Comments,

CONCERNING

STAGE FOLK and Sometimes OTHERS

BY JOSEPHINE GRO.

Edith Helena, of vaudeville fame, recently made a most novel hit—one that procured her the second week following a one week engagement at Keith & Proctor's Cleveland theatre. Incidentally she had a few hundred Cleveland housewives baking bread for her the first week of her stay.

As headliner she was specially interviewed, and during the talk with the representative she chanced to say that American women had lost the fine art of bread making, in which their mothers and grandmothers so gloried. She furthermore declared that it was shameful the way that women neglected their home duties, depriving their families of good, wholesome bread, which was her right to provide.

This interview was printed in one of the papers, and the day following she was busy for some hours reading the bushel of indignant and protesting letters that came in her mail. In response to these she had an offer published in the paper to the effect that she would give a private box at the Saturday matinee to the woman who should send in the best loaf of bread. By Friday night more than eight hundred loaves of the staff of life had been received at the theatre. A committee of judges was then appointed, which was headed by Mayor Tom Johnson, and included others of Cleveland's foremost citizens. After the prize had been awarded, the several hundred loaves of bread were distributed among the poor, and Miss Helena was greatly gratified that she had been the means of accomplishing a little good, both morally—by inciting a number of women to a sense of their responsibilities, and, physically, by providing at least one feeding of really good bread to many poor families.

"In Grandma's Day," one of the most popular of Miss Jean Lenox's altogether popular songs, was written to please and propitiate her dear old grandmother. Miss Lenox has won both dollars and renown by a dozen or more compositions, chief among which are "Won't You Take a Little Walk With Me?" "All the Boys Look Good to Me," and the famous Tanguay song, "I Don't Care."

Miss Lenox has made her name well known through the columns of the press and the pages of the magazines. Through all the triumphs and disappointments of this and other work, she always had the loving encouragement of the grandmother. But when she began to write songs of the popular order, the dear old lady withheld her praise. Miss Lenox began to notice this, and one day questioned her relative concerning it. Finally she drew out the fact that the old lady strongly disapproved of what she termed the modern silly song, and it hurt her to think her granddaughter would descend to writing such.

Miss Lenox resolved to write a song to please "granny," and the above named song was the result. Not only does it now please every grandmother who has heard it, but every grandchild and every performer who sings it.

The Salome dance pervades even Princess Tarpeia's wonderful vaudeville act, in which she outrivals all others in her undulations and the violence of her contortions. As a manacle breaker she is said to equal Houdini, than whom no greater in this line of entertainment and prowess exists.

Among her tests of ingenuity and strength is that of freeing herself from a straitjacket, in which she is bound by insane asylum experts. Imprisoned in this long canvas affair, with arms pinioned in the sleeves twice as long as they, and then wrapped about her body, beyond any possible hope of escape, Tarpeia by some means must escape in order to maintain the reputation of her act.

To do this she drops to her knees, then writhes and undulates in sinuous movements like those of the abject Salome in her remorse and anguish, in her desperate efforts to free her arms. Once or twice during the struggle she falls panting for an instant's rest, then rises with renewed strength and resumes her strenuous gymnastics, which finally free her.

Lily Lena, the English vaudeville singer, has an even three dozens of gowns in which to sing her very popular songs during her present booking. She well keeps up her reputation for dainty, rich and tasteful stage dressing, nor are her street costumes any less handsome, though of a different character—and money is no object whatever in the cost of them.

All her stage changes are very distinct, each contrasting artistically with the one worn before or after it, and each harmonizing, as far as can a gown with a song, with the number she may be singing. With personal charm and winsomeness, good songs and suitable dressing, it is no wonder that Miss Lena's vaudeville laurels are so profusely showered upon her throughout her American engagement.

Her first song at a recent performance at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, was "One Sweet Girl." The costume worn with this was a simple appearing lingerie gown of girlish design, the embroidery thereon being all delicate handwork such as the Swiss peasants do for an incredibly small sum, and is sold in the shops for the stupendous amount to which the extravagant styles of to-day has raised such work. With this she wears a quaint little bonnet of the 1837 era, when young Queen Victoria set the English styles for simple dressing. It is a tiny scoop bonnet of fine white straw, faced with black satin, and trimmed with black rosettes each side, from which float two little side ribbons of black, about three inches wide.

Her "By the Sea" song she dresses in a gown of Nile green satin meteor, made the length of all her costumes, to reach the ankle, and, by the way, all her gowns are high necked, with sleeves elbow length. Extending from the Empire girdle, back and front over the shoulders, are three broad bias bands of the satin, edged with gold braid, while the ornaments of the bodice are tiny white silk tassels wherever there is a reason for them. The skirt, scant at the hips, falls in gracefully undulating folds to the hem. A large black picture hat, with two heavy plumes, completes the costume.

Satin lumineux, of the popular and delicate champagne shade, is the under drapery of one of Miss Lena's favorite costumes. The mode is Directoire, and the robe of cream lace falling in billows of softness, is cut to disclose the handsome satin beneath. The lace trimmed bodice has a pretty vest of Japanese embroidery in pale colors. Around the collar is tied a band of gold braid, finished at the bow ends with tiny gold tassels. The hat accompanying this costume is of champagne colored chip, trimmed with a full, broad ruching of tulle around the top of the crown. Beneath this ruching a broad, crushed fold of white satin encircles the crown. A big, full white aigrette finishes the hat at the left side.

Pale sapphire blue is the shade of a very fetching little gown, the material of which is heavy, satin faced crepe de chine, made high Empire style, with skirt of trotter length. This is trimmed near the hem with a four inch band of sapphire blue velvet. The bodice consists of broad folds of the satin lying surplice-like, each side of a V neck of Irish lace. The garniture is silver cords and tassels. The short sleeves are of Irish lace, finished with the same trimming of silver. This is Miss Lena's "Swing Me Higher, Obediah," song.

A quaint little gown in which Miss Lena sings, "Won't You Be My Husband?" is entirely in keeping with the character of the song. It is a soft black silk skirt and jacket, made with little trimming, which consists of two black velvet bands on the skirts, and a narrow black ribbon velvet band on the jacket. A widow's bonnet, close and small in shape, surmounts her always well dressed head.

A very handsome costume, white and gold, is of white chiffon cloth over satin. Broad bands of heavy lace extend from the front hem, up over the shoulders, down to the hem at the back. The figures and patterns in the lace artistically outlined with gold thread, and, trimming each side of the band, is another band of inch wide gold braid. This also extends around the band of lace which trims the hem. The bodice is ornamented in front with horizontal bands of the gold trimming with slight military effect, finished at the ends with gilt tassels—these little ornaments evidently being popular with Miss Lena. The sleeves are of kimono design, made with broad folds of the chiffon cloth combined with lace.

Plans of the German Theatre.

The prospectus issued by the director of the German Theatre Co. seems to guarantee a most enjoyable series of performances. Farce and tragedy, comedy and drama, French, German and Scandinavian plays, all will have a hearing this season at the New German Theatre, at Fifty-ninth Street and Madison Avenue.

There will be no stars, but a regular stock company, which will comprise forty-two members. They have been selected by Dr. Maurice Baumfeld from the leading theatres of the larger cities in Germany and Austria, and are all well known and interesting figures of the German-speaking stage.

To old and well known favorites like Hedwig Reich, the versatile Eugene Burg, and the character actors, Marlow and Sauermann, are new engagements, including: Ferdinand Stell, who has won the approbation of Berlin theatregoers by his impersonations of heroic parts; Carl Grosser, whose bonvivants are true to life; Carl Sick, an excellent stage manager for modern drama, and Gustave Conradi, said to be one of the most irresistibly funny comedians on the contemporary German stage. Among the ladies are Mara Korff, from the Court Thestre, at Berlin, known for her beauty and thoughtful impersonations of society ladies; Hanne Proft, a sprightly and charming ingenue; Mrs. Grosser Spier and Trude Vogt, best in sentimental juvenile parts; Muriel Hope, and Ilse Tasso, who has a European reputation.

The most careful attention will be bestowed upon the costuming and scenery. The latter will be specially designed and painted for each play. Dr. Maurice Baumfeld and Eugene Burg, the two directors, will supervise the stage management in person, and every play presented to the public will be thought out to the smallest details.

The New German Theatre will be opened in October with Wildenbruch's "Die Rabensteinerin," a play which will also be played in English during this season, under the title of "The Executioner." The scenery has been designed by Carl Hassman, and executed by H. Meixner, the two artists who furnished the beautiful scenery for the "Goetz von Berlichingen" during the last season.

Emanuel Reicher, generally acknowledged to be one of the greatest actors of Germany, will be brought over by the German Theatre Co. He is said to be particularly strong as an Ibsen player, and during his visit will appear in "Rosmersholm," "The Masterbuilder" and "John Gabriel Borkman."

Anna Held's New Play.

The rehearsals of Anna Held's new play, "Miss Innocence Abroad," began last week, under the supervision of Ludwig Englander, composer of the music, assisted by Frank N. Darling. The piece is announced to open in Atlantic City, Oct. 26.

Henry Miller Buys Lee Shubert's Interests.

Henry Miller last week bought Lee Shubert's share in the corporation of the Henry Miller Co., which included an interest in such plays as "The Great Divide" and "Brown of Harvard."

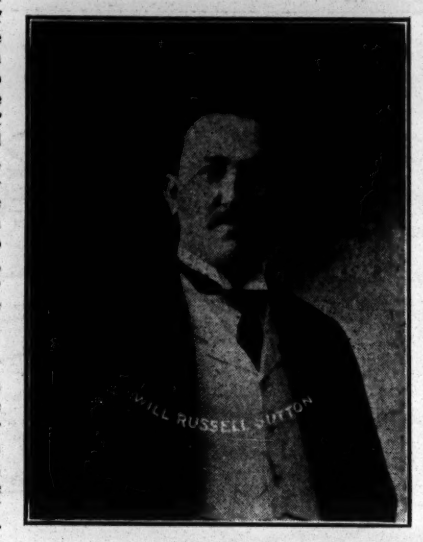
Israel Zangwill Here.

On board the steamer Teutonic, which arrived in New York Sept. 23, Israel Zangwill, the well known author, has come to America for the first time in ten years, to assist in the staging and production of his new play, "The Melting Pot," in which Walker Whiteside is to star this season, and the premiere of which is to occur at the Columbia Theatre, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Zangwill's last visit to this country was during the run of his first play, "The Children of the Ghetto," which was given its premiere at the Broadway Theatre, in this city. Since then he has written several plays, and in the interim of their construction has given almost his whole attention to the furtherance of the Zion movement in England.

Mr. Zangwill will remain in this country but a few weeks.

"The Melting Pot" is purely an American drama, with every scene laid in and about New York. It is said to be almost wholly a symbolical drama in its inception, and to be one of the most remarkable plays that has yet been given to the public.



W. R. SUTTON

Is the writer of the song lyrics of "Fatal Quarrel," "Thinking of Her Billy Boy," and others, as well as the latest song, "The Tie That Binds," just out, and published by Shapiro.

Blanche Ring with Joe Weber's Co.

Blanche Ring's starring tour, in a new play by George V. Hobart, which was announced for early in the season, will be postponed a while. Miss Ring will meanwhile appear in the burlesque which Joe Weber will make this season. The new burlesque will be made by combining last season's skit on "The Merry Widow" with some ideas from "The Devil." George V. Hobart has written the book.

Joe Weber will play the valet and janitor, Heinrich Disch; Grace Griswold has been engaged for Elsie Eisberg, the principal victim of The Devil's machinations; Walter Jones will play his Satanic Majesty, Charles J. Ross will be Prince Dandilo, and Albert Hart will be the Ambassador. A specialty will be made of the Salome dance, which will be given by Blanche Deyo.

WHO IS IT?

If any responsible manager guesses the correct name of the above act and sends it to THE CLIPPER, within one week, the act will work for him one week free of charge the first open date.

Grand Opera House, Marion, O., Being Renovated.

The work of renovating and remodeling the interior of the Grand Opera House, at Marion, O., is under way. New carpets will be laid, the seats are being replaced and repaired, and the house will be redecorated. The old furnace will be torn out, and an entirely new heating system installed. Many other minor improvements will be effected. M. J. Sullivan is the manager of the theatre.

Wm. Gillette Forced to Postpone New York Opening.

William Gillette will be forced to postpone the New York opening of "Samson," because of the difficulty of securing a theatre for his use. He will tour in the piece until the end of October, when it is believed that Hattie Williams, the extension of whose run at the Criterion Theatre takes the time allotted to Mr. Gillette, will be able to find another theatre.

Maxine Elliott's New York Season.

Maxine Elliott's annual New York engagement will be played this season in Daly's Theatre, where on Oct. 5 she will produce a new play by Rachel Crothers, entitled "Myself—Bettina." In her support will be Julian L'Estrange, Eric Maturin, Grant Mitchell, Gertrude Berkeley, Suzanne Perry, Lois Frances Clark and Viola Fortesque.

Mrs. Hilary Bell Enters Players' Ranks.

Mrs. Hilary Bell, widow of the dramatic critic of The New York Press, for many years, has become an actress. Charles Frohman has engaged her for one of "The Thief" companies.

CLARICE VANCE,

Whose picture appears on the front page of this issue, is one of vaudeville's favorites. For ten years Miss Vance's fame as an inimitable singer of "coon songs" has been cumulative, till now nearly every devotee of vaudeville is familiar with the popular "Southern singer," as she is called. Miss Vance's career began in Boston, and quite by accident, as her tendencies were not at all stage-ward. It occurred that while delivering a darky melody, some one of the local stage managers happened to hear her, and was at once convinced that she was a real star. An offer to appear at one of the Boston houses followed, which began her vaudeville career. Miss Vance is not what has been called a "coon shouter." Indeed her delivery is quite the opposite. Instead of actually singing her numbers, she appears to speak them, making her a sort of conversational vocalist. Her quiet, well modulated voice, with its perfect enunciation, makes her delivery all that could be asked for. Facial expression is another art of which Miss Vance is mistress, and as "coon" songs are such as are usually demonstrated by the physiognomy as well as the voice, they are perfectly within her province of execution. A number of highly successful songs have been brought out by Miss Vance, and their popularity can be said to be partly credited to her excellent exploitation. They number among the well known "hits" of the country, including "Give Dem Presents Back," "Kiss Yourself Good-Bye," "Sympathy," "Nothing From Nothing Leaves You," "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark," and others. In private life Miss Vance is the wife of "Mose" Gumble, the well known song writer and composer, now connected with the musical publishing house of J. H. Remick & Co. Miss Vance opens her first New York appearance, since her return from Europe, at Blaney's Lincoln Square Theatre.

Norman Hackett Wins in "Classmates."

Norman Hackett opened the season of the Academy of Music, Norfolk, Va., Sept. 17, and made his debut as a star in De Mille's "Classmates." A bit nervous at his first entrance, the enthusiasm with which he was received reassured him, until the culminating jungle scene in the third act, at the close of which the curtain was raised a half dozen times, and Mr. Hackett was called upon for his first curtain speech as a star. All the parts were well filled. Doris Mitchell, Mr. Hackett's leading lady, won the audience both by her beauty and her excellent work—especially in the second and fourth acts.

The house was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting in honor of the distinguished visitors from Ft. Monroe. Two stage boxes were filled with officers from the fort, who came in their dress uniforms. Other groups of gold lace were scattered throughout the theatre. The orchestra and balcony were filled with Norfolk's best society. Every inch of room was taken, all seats being sold two days before the opening date. A reception was given to the officers of the fort on the stage after the play.

The cast follows: Bubby Dumble, Willard Louis; "Silent" Clay, Elwood Cromwell; Bert Stafford, Erskine Sanford; Harry Jones, Jos. B. Linhardt; Duncan Irving, Norman Hackett; Hugh Lindsay, Jerome Storm; Mr. Irving, James A. Furey; Mrs. Stafford, Elizabeth Hunt; Phyllis Stafford, Lillian Lancaster; Sylvia Randolph, Doris Mitchell; Lieutenant Lane, Hollis J. Connelley; Miss Harvey, Maude Howe; Dick Owens, James Britte; Maid, Elsa Bryan; Officer, Searle Danforth.

Professional Woman's League Benefit.

The Professional Woman's League had a benefit at the New York Theatre, Thursday afternoon, Sept. 24. The programme, arranged by Una Clayton, was a long and excellent one, and about $1,000 was raised for the fund.

On the long programme were many players of prominence, but the length of the bill prevented some of them from appearing.

Mrs. Annie Yeamans got a great reception when she stepped out on the stage, and she contributed a song and dance that brought down the house.

Amelia Bingham, the president of the league, made a speech, setting forth the objects of the organization, and, all in all, the affair was a most enjoyable one.

The programme as announced named Belle Gold, William Rock and Maude Fulton, Amelia Mazett, Cliff Gordon, William Hodge and company, in the first act of "The Man from Home;" Gertrude Hoffmann, Adele Ritchie, Mary Shaw and company, in "The Silent System;" Mlle. Dazie, Una Clayton, Ida Hawley, Lola Yberri and company, Bessie McCoy and Clifton Crawford, Anita Hendrie and David Miles and company, "Burning to Sing, or Singing to Burn," Edna May Spooner, Daisy Lloyd Wood, Ralph Herz, Lee Harrison, Jack Hazzard and Virginia Popes.

Louise Gunning Makes Debut as Star.

Louise Gunning made her debut as a star Thursday, Sept. 24, at the Providence Opera House, Providence, R. I., singing the title role in Pixley and Luder's new operetta, "Marcelle," which is in two acts and three scenes, all laid in the ancient German town of Berghof.

In the cast supporting Miss Gunning were: Jess J. Dandy, Lawrence Wheat, Frank Rushworth, Herbert Cawthorne, Henry Norman, George Boniface Jr., Robert O'Connor, David Bennett, George Reed, Elsa Ryan, Marion Ford, Edith Girvan, Leona Anderson and Nettie Black.

The Will of Bronson Howard.

Bronson Howard's will, which was filed in the surrogate's office last week, states that the value of the estate is more than $10,000.

After making minor bequests to relatives, the collection of books and manuscripts bearing on matters of the stage, is left to the American Dramatic Club.

The residue of the estate is left to the widow, Alice Maude Howard.

Annie Russell Rehearsing.

Annie Russell, who will be seen this season under the direction of Wagenhals & Kemper, in John Valentine's play, "The Stronger Sex," has returned to New York, after a prolonged stay at London and Paris. Miss Russell is to assist Collin Kemper in selecting the players who are to appear in her supporting company. She will open her season in Washington on Oct. 12.

Marie Shotwell Married.

Marie Shotwell (Harvey) was married Sept. 24, to Grafton Austin, of Savannah, Ga., in St. Philip's Church, Dyker Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, and then she and Mr. Austin started for the Berkshires in an automobile. They will live in Savannah.

FRED. K. LANHAM, agent of the Depew-Burdette Stock Co., writes: "The Depew-Burdette Stock Co. is now in its ninth week of the present season, doing nicely and running smoothly. Our business in Charleston and Huntington, W. Va., was phenomenal, considering the stringency in money and other financial troubles. Manager Joseph Gainer, of the Huntington Theatre, pronounced the company one of the best drawing attractions that has ever played his house. Our roster remains the same, with the addition of H. D. Smith, who recently joined at Charleston, W. Va., to take charge of the electrical effects and run the new motion pictures. Our repertory of plays includes the successes of the past few years, as seen at top prices—no old plays under new titles, but picked royalty plays. Our chief feature is the excellent vaudeville olio, headed by Ruth and Naioma Wheeler, Silvers and Egan, Thos. E. Depew and Harry Wayne Linsay. After a few weeks we go to our old stamping grounds, the sunny South, where they claim the Depew-Burdette Co. the 'king of repertory.'"

NOTES from W. F. Mann's "Shadowed by Three" Co.—The second season of this company opened at Indianapolis, Aug. 6. The company numbers twenty-six people. Several members of the original company have been re-engaged, and the management can safely say that this is the strongest cast that has ever appeared in this successful melodrama. The route is practically the same as last year, including all the popular priced houses on the Stair & Havlin circuit. Special features include: The Man of Mystery, Henella, who performs wonders in the magic world; the La Salle Singing Four are winning new laurels for their selections and the manner in which they produce their up-to-date numbers. J. E. Emerson, a clever monologist, is making good everywhere with his parodies. All scenery, properties and electric effects have been built new, including a forty horse-power Thomas flyer. This machine is the largest practical auto ever used on the stage. Business at the Bijou and Alhambra, Chicago was very flattering—in fact, it seemed like old times to hear the officials calling out "No more seats for this performance." Roster: W. F. Mann, owner; E. T. Maxwell, general manager; Harry J. Jackson, company manager; E. L. Rice, advance representative; Jefferson Hall, stage director; Fred Coulter, master mechanic; M. E. Zahner, master properties; Gus Miller, electrician; Jefferson Hall, Wilbur Christy, W. J. Woods, C. H. Henella, Edward Balz, J. E. Emerson, Fred Erickson, D'Arcy Campbell, J. E. Bowers, Fred Coulter, W. E. Zahner, John Goodman, Sam Meyers, Jake Hoag, Bertha Julian, Gertrude Maitland, Myra Collins, Mae Woods, May Carson and Addie Henella.

NOTES FROM the Keyes Sisters Big Stock Co., Arthur E. Herbst, manager.—Business continues good, except occasionally for a night of bad weather. The company has not been changed since our opening date, fifteen weeks ago. The season of 1908-09 has been well booked. S. Burton Keyes remains ahead of the company; V. A. Varney, stage director, and Madge Butler Bell, musical director.

Goldberg, who have incorporated a company, to be known as the Imperial Amusement Co., under Massachusetts laws. A temporary office has been selected in Boston. Later a permanent office will be secured on Broadway, New York. Our first offering will be Wallie Mack's Own New Attraction, opening near Boston, in a repertory of farce comedies, on royalty, from the T. H. Winnett Play Bureau, of New York City. The company will carry thirty-five people, with a challenge band and orchestra. We will tour New England until after the election, then Canada, New York and Pennsylvania. Roster: Rhuef, Goldberg and Mack, managers; Geo. Brown, agent; Harry Hart, treasurer; Fred Wilson, director band and orchestra; Fred Murray, stage manager, and an all professional cast of metropolitan players."

THE ENRIQUE BORRAS CO. NOTES.—We arrived at San Juan, P. R., Aug. 28, opening in the Municipal Theatre, 30, to a crowded house. We will remain here one month, then sail to Cuba and Mexico. This is one of the best Spanish companies playing a repertory of dramatic plays.

WILLIAM SATHER writes: "I have organized one of the finest musical comedy companies in the Southwest, and have been rehearsing it for the past three weeks in the city of Dallas, Tex. This company has all special paper and scenic effects. We opened week of Sept. 7, at Ennis, Tex., with the following roster: Wm. Sather, proprietor and manager; Pete Seymour, producer; Charles Hoey and Charles Gregory, comedians; Julia King, prima donna; Babe Seymour, soubrette; Lydia Wallace, Juanita Gunn, Nellie St. Claire, Marie Davis, Carrie Weil, Lillian Roberts, Frankie Lane and Pete Seymour Jr. THE OLD RELIABLE is a welcome visitor every week."

NOTES FROM the Bijou Stock Co., under the personal direction of Don C. Manning, of the Manning-Servas Attractions.—This company formally opened its season at the Clark Opera House, Avon, N. Y., Sept. 7, when friends of both Mr. Manning and Mr. Servas turned out to witness this, their crowning effort of years of managerial experience. A contingent of talented players, in conjunction with the most elaborate scenic equipment ever attempted by a stock company, are in evidence with this attraction. Executive staff is as follows: Manning & Servas, proprietors; Frank Hettrick, manager; M. C. Manning, treasurer; John Servas, scenic artist; Jos. Marthrage, stage manager; Arthur Wright, electrician; T. C. Leslie, ahead. Especial credit should be given to Fern Hamilton and Marie Clark, who successfuly and artistically presented the leading female roles on short notice, owing to disappointments. Optimisim is the byword with this company, and all we ask, except success, is the regular visit of THE CLIPPER.

NOTES FROM the Western "Texas Ranger" Co., under the management of Jack Hoskins.—We opened our season at Peru, Ill., to S. R. O., and the company is doing well all along the line. Mr. Hoskins has one of the strongest Western dramas on the road this season, and his cowboy band is a winner everywhere we show. Fred H. Roberts is again with this company, this making his third season with this show. Mr. Roberts is noted for the Indian character part in the piece.

ALBERT HANNA has joined with "The Clansman," to play the part of Aleck, the sheriff.

BESSIE BROWNELL, pianist, writes that she finds it necessary to continue her vacation a month or so longer, on account of a recent severe attack of heart disease. Miss Brownell is known in the West as "Brownie." She is now organizing a ladies' orchestra, to go out about Jan. 1, to be known as Brownie's Ladies' Orchestra. She has lately fallen heir to quite an amount of property in Central Iowa.

ADA M. DARETTE, a clever young Chicago actress, writes: "I have signed with the Vandyke-Eaton Co., for the season of 1908-09, to play ingenues, juveniles and some heavies. The plays are: 'In the Hands of the Czar,' 'Sapho,' 'Carmen,' 'Red Cross,' 'The Christian,' 'Carolina Feud,' 'Dora Thorne,' 'A Cowboy's Girl,' 'Slaves of the Mill,' 'A Girl From California,' and others. Everything looks bright and prosperous, and the company booked solid up to July, 1909."

GERTRUDE EWING NOTES.—Wm. A. Grigg has been engaged by Miss Ewing as stage director. This is Mr. Grigg's second season with the company. This season Mr. Grigg is dividing the leads and heavies with Mr. Pooler. Since the opening of the company, in July, we have been doing a nice business. Everybody is happy, and the company is in fine shape. Every member each week reaches out with a glad hand for THE OLD RELIABLE. The beautiful directoire gown worn by Miss Ewing in "Sapho," is the talk of each city we visit.

WM. DONOVAN, late of the Earl Burgess Co., was stricken suddenly ill at Ogden, U., with appendicitis. He was taken to a hospital, and underwent a very serious surgical operation. Mr. Donovan is improving rapidly. The night before the company left for Baker City, Ore., the members of the company gave Mr. Donovan a big benefit, which resulted in the house being packed to the doors.

GEO. W. SCOTT AND DOROTHY MARKE write: "Owing to the closing of the Earl Burgess Co Summer season, at Baker City, Ore., we are spending a few weeks with friends at Ogden, U., where we play a ten weeks' engagement in stock. We have had a pleasant Summer engagement and enjoyed the Western trip. Miss Marke has become an adept at horseback riding, that pastime being one of our daily sports."

Y., where they will lay off about four weeks, and then open in Canada in halls for the Winter season.

NOTES FROM the Chester Bishop Co.—A marriage between two members of this company was immensely enjoyed by the members in the Morley Theatre, at Barnesboro, Pa., recently. At the conclusion of the performance Albert Taylor, the company's popular comedian, and Mary Frost, the pianist, were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr. Baker, of Barnesboro. After the ceremony the company partook of a dainty supper at the new City Hotel, where the merriment reigned supreme until the "wee sma'" hours of the morning. Aside from the members of the company, Manager Morley and wife, of the theatre, and Parke Haws, of Johnstown, were present, and enjoyed the repast that was served by Landlord Carr, of the City Hotel. The company presented Mr. and Mrs. Taylor with a beautiful chafing dish. All joined in hearty congratulations, and wished the bride and groom all the good fortune and happiness in the world, and the event will linger long and pleasantly in the minds of the members of the Chester Bishop company and their friends in the busy little city of Barnesboro.

The members of the Harrington company elevated the grave, marked it and decorated it beautifully with as many elegant flowers as were purchasable in the town, after which an offering was said, a few hymns sung, and the company left with her sacred memory resting within their hearts, as all professional names should remain. HARRY R. VICKERS writes: "After five very pleasant seasons with Geo. M. Fenberg, I am this season representing Joseph King's "New East Lynne." This attraction opened the season at Brockton, Aug. 31, and business up to date has been more than good. The company, with Lillian Foster Goodwin in the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, is a most excellent one, and leaving a most excellent impression in all cities played. The production is a scenic one, rehearsed and produced under the direction of Mr. King personally, and shows perfectness in every detail. The Joseph King enterprises this season embrace nine attractions, and govern the best of time. The paper is the finest I have ever seen, and the attraction bills like a white top."

J. S. BAVIS, of Bavis and Dalrymple, now with Strong's Players, Walter Savidge, manager, writes: "This is our third season with the above company, and a performer can judge the people he or she is working for in that length of time. Mr. Savidge carries a company of twenty-six people, a band, an orchestra, and a good line of bills, under the direction of Elwin Strong, and has had a fine business in consequence.

THE HARRIS BROS., managers of the Harris Lyceum, Boonton, N. J., write: "The Black Patti Troubadours opened their thirteenth season at Boonton, N. J., to a capacity house. The performance was the best ever given here. Sissieretta Jones, the original Black Patti, was the stellar attraction, and was in excellent voice throughout. The comedians and dancers were clever, and the singing was the best heard here in many years. A musical comedy, in one act, "The Blackville Strollers," was given with the following cast: S. Tutt Whitney, Homer Tutt, W. A. Cooke, Chas. Bougla, Gus Hall, Geo. Day, Sara Venable, Sarah Green, Marie Belle, Jeanette Murphy, Anthony Byrd, Beatrice Hodge, Ruby Taylor, Ada Alexander, Daisy Brown, Vera Davenport, Theresa Burroughs, Loretta Wooden, Irene Gaines, Slim Henderson, Henry Wooden, and James F. DAVE HEILMAN, agent of the Howard-Dorset company, writes: "We have just signed Fred Ecker's wonderful talking pictures, and will give a complete film of talking pictures at each performance. We claim this to be one of the most expensive vaudeville features ever carried with a repertory attraction. Mr. Ecker carries six people, and each picture will be given complete. We also have five other vaudeville acts, including Chas. Burch, singing comedian; Jack Rollins, 'The Boy with the Voice;' Annette Steinbury, female baritone, and Eman and Wilson, musical act. The above people are carried besides the regular acting company. Crawfordsville, Ind., was the same as ever for this company, hundreds turned away the opening night, and business held up well all week. We have just finished ten weeks of fair dates in Indiana and Illinois, and will now go over the same route as played by this company for the past eight years, where Miss Dorset's name is a household word. Our ad. in THE CLIPPER this week brought us over three hundred replies. Our company is now filled, and, we think, one of the best on the road."

PAUL MAXWELL, pianist, writes that he has just returned from a splendid Summer engagement near Portland, Me.

ORA FRITZ, of Pittsburg, Kan., writes that she was severely injured in a runaway accident while driving on Labor Day. Her right leg was broken and other severe injuries sustained.

Rainier, Md., a suburb of Washington, D. C., for a much needed rest. We had a most enjoyable season with Mr. Peruchi, who is a prince of good fellows, and with his charming wife, Mabel Gypzene, endeared himself to all. We will rest until after the election, after which we will go into vaudeville. Harry S. Newton is working on an act for us which promises to be a novelty, and will give both an opportunity in our lines of work."

NOTES FROM the Chicago Stock Co., under the direction of Frank D. Short.—"We opened our tenth regular season Aug. 29, and it was a night that will live long in the memory of those present, for seldom has such a clever company of players been massed together under one management. The opening bill was 'Lord and Lady Algy,' with Edna Mae Crawford and Jack F. Farrell in the leading roles. Others in the cast were: Ralph Cummings, Hebert Norton, Gordon Leigh, George Marks, Florence Scott, Ethel Brooks, Constance Leigh and Helen Grayce. Miss Crawford wore some handsome costumes, and received many beautiful flowers, and at the end of the third act both she and Mr. Farrell were repeatedly called before the curtain, where, in a neat little speech, Mr. Farrell thanked the audience for their splendid welcome. The engagement of Miss Crawford and Mr. Farrell is but for four weeks, when Miss Crawford goes to San Francisco, Cal., to head the stock company there, and Mr. Farrell to Boston, Mass., where he is to be leading man with a well known stock company, under the direction of Mr. Short."

NOTES FROM THE STEVENS COMEDY CO.—We close one of our most successful tenting seasons Sept. 28. Business has been phenomenal except the first couple of weeks. We had an entirely new outfit, a 50ft. round top, with a 20ft. and a 30ft. middle pieces. NOTES FROM DE RUE BROS.' IDEAL MINSTRELS.—Our season opened July 20, at Cooperstown, N. Y., after two weeks of rehearsals. We are now in our tenth week, and up to the present time there has been only two stands that we have not played to turnaway business. The reputation this show has gained in former seasons is proved by the record breaking business this season, and from the criticisms of the press and public. This season the show is giving better satisfaction than any previous year. The company numbers thirty-five people, with a band of eighteen pieces, which is positively the grandest musical organization of its kind on tour. The concert orchestra, under the direction of August Kuehls, numbers ten pieces. The minstrel first part is given an ovation from the opening to the spectacular close—"The Spirit of '76." The scenic grandeur consists of a beautiful setting of seven hanging drops and sixty electric lights of all colors. The vocal part of the show is ably handled again this season by F. W. Chase, who is supported by a chorus of nine voices. The first edition ends are held down in a capable manner by John J. Lane, Ross Fox, Arthur Fox and Shattuck Lynch, while the premiere ends are handled by the De Rue Bros. (Billy and Bobby). Master John J. Lambert is master of ceremonies, this being his third year as interlocutor with De Rue Bros.' Minstrels, besides being a phenomenal baritone vocalist. The vaudeville and olio part of the show is by far the strongest this company has ever carried. The olio opens with Leon Stamford, a clever wire cyclist, whose act is a sensation. The Fox Brothers (Ross and Arthur), dancers par excellence, their first American engagement with this company. The Great Harvey Dunn, exponent of physical culture act, followed by that talkative man, Billy De Rue, with a new monologue patter and in a collection of new and original parodies that never fail to hold their own with the audience. The Columbia Musical Trio (Wilcox, Bissett and Boby De Rue) is in the foremost rank of American musical acts, playing on a collection of thirty instruments, making a feature of the saxophone, Swiss handbells and xylophones, playing the standard overture, "Morning, Noon and Night," on the xylophone. When the curtain rings up on this act there is an electrical display stage setting and instruments at a cost of $2,000, and the act is always good for three encores and as many curtain calls. The performance closes with the Kartollo Bros., a quartette of club and hoop jugglers of unusual merit.

"When the Robin Sings Again," Don Ramsay's new idea in rustic ballads, with the novel birdwhistle chorus, is a salary winner for Ruth Wright, Frank Fox, in the Bowery Boys Quartette: Master Grover Lee, Dynes and Dynes, Harry La Marr, Ben Greenfield, Mrs. W. W. Leven, Roscoe Buzzell, Bay State Quartette, Freda Terrill, Tommy Melville, Little May Eddy, Mae Vincent, Si Bunce, Walter Keith, Lillian Waters, Great Eastern Quartette, Fielding and Fisher, and others.

"Persian Lamb Rag," fresh from the press, and one of the best buck dances in print, is being featured by Elsie Harvey, and by McGrath and Paige, the well known banjo team.

CLARENCE CRAMER ROBINSON, of New York City, announces that he is now a member of the faculty of the State University of Oklahoma, as associate instructor of theory of music and instructor of voice culture.

I. BARUCH, leader, of Seattle, Wash., is in town organizing a ladies' orchestra.

Joseph W. Stern & Co. Notes.

A chat with Joseph W. Stern & Co. demonstrates the fact that they have an endless line of surprises and successes in store for the coming season—new writers of note and innumerable novelties in the operatic field, the musical comedy field, for the concert stage and vaudeville.

In the first place the Paul Lincke compositions, representing the creme de la creme in modern classical music, are solely published by this firm. Foremost among these is "The Glow Worm," which is now conceded to be a most valuable copyright and sure to sell many thousands of copies in the different arrangements published, which include song in English words, song in German words, instrumental regular edition, instrumental simplified edition, four hands, and violin and piano. In addition to "Glow Worm," all Lincke's pieces have taken hold in surprising shape. Julius Steger's song, "Castles in the Air," "The Cherry in the Glass," from "The Girl Behind the Counter;" "Luna Waltz," "Wedding Dance" Waltz, "Police Parade," "Siamese Patrol" are all representative works from this eminent writer's pen, which are sure to sweep the country.

Perhaps the next important item of interest in this firm's output, is the new De Wolf Hopper opera, "What Happened Then," which, it is expected, will even surpass the record of "The Merry Widow." De Wolf Hopper, himself, is as happy as a schoolboy over this opera, and predicts that it will be the success of his life, even outranking "Wang." At the Lambs' Club, the Players' Club and all the resorts along Broadway where managers and performers congregate, the success of this piece is in the atmosphere and is being talked about. The most novel advertising effects ever used in America will be employed in exploiting this opera. The cast is an unusually prominent one.

"The Golden Butterfly," the new De Koven-Smith opera, in which Grace Van Studdiford will star, is now in rehearsal, and is also spoken of. Mr. Smith has written some unusually clever lyrics. In fact, they are all of the Gilbertian order. Miss Van Studdiford's popularity as a comic opera star is too well known to dwell upon in limited space.

Cole and Johnson's new musical comedy, "The Red Moon," is also among the big surprises of the season. Cole and Johnson have evidently taken a fresh hold upon the public pulse. Their numbers in the new production should be handed down to posterity as the real works of genius. Such exquisite Southern melodies have not been heard for years. In addition, the piece, which introduces the Indian character as well as the negro, lends itself to the introduction of Indian melodies of the quaintest and most beautiful type. A rival publisher recently admitted that he would gladly give a brown stone house if he were permitted to publish such hits as "The Red Shawl," "Pathway of Love," "Bleeding Moon" and "Ain't Had No Lovin' in a Long Time," will eventually prove to become.

No musician is better known in the Middle West than Barclay Walker, of Indianapolis. For years this man's genius in his own musical circles has been a by-word. The time to show the world at large what he can do in musical productions has arrived, and Mr. Walker will produce, under the fatherly guidance of Klaw & Erlanger, a new opera, entitled "Marigold," which appears to have every element of success. It is seldom that any company at rehearsals is so enthusiastic over the product of any composer and author, and the company has been pronounced one of the best singing companies in America. All the greater magnets in the theatrical world have their eyes on this production, and their faith in it has enabled Mr. Walker to procure the very best opening time in the principal cities of the West, with the view of a New York opening immediately following the election.

A new production, under the title of "The Widow from Wichita," is to be launched this season under the guidance of Francis Stuart. It is a three act production, containing twenty-two musical numbers, of which the following stand out prominently: "My Japanese Lantern," "Down in Mexico," "The Branch of the Willow Tree" and "Play Time." The show is booked to open in Atlantic City shortly, and will thereafter play Klaw & Erlanger's time.

Shapiro Songs and Singers.

Shapiro's sheet and music store at Atlantic City continues to be the "big noise" along the boardwalk, and many thousands of patrons visit its attractive counters throughout every week. Producing managers, performers and musical directors sojourning at Atlantic City make the Shapiro store their headquarters. William H. Macart, at the Alhambra Theatre, during a recent week, sang "Mother Hasn't Spoke to Father Since," to exhaustive encores. So great was Macart's hit with this song that the musical director "played the audience out" to its strains at every performance. May Ward and her Dresden Dolls are flying the Shapiro banner this season, and are scoring heavily with Edgar Selden and Melville J. Gideon's song of the moment, "Oh, You Kid!" Jas. Gorman, the veteran minstrel producer, is rehearsing the act. McKenzie and Shannon will have an entirely new musical setting for their act this season, especially prepared for them by Maurice Shapiro. A vast amount of high class song material from the Shapiro publications is in course of selection. Kathryn Nelson and Elizabeth Otto announce that their song hits are "Cecelia" and "I'm Rehearsing With a Broadway Show." Violet Dale has perfected her new vaudeville act. Miss Dale says that Shapiro songs, among them "Oh, You Kid!" are good enough for her. Herbert Ingraham, writer of "Because I'm Married Now," has written another odd song along the same lines, entitled "Somebody Ought to Tell Her Husband." "Billy Boy" is Mr. Ingraham's latest march song. "Take Me 'Round in a Taxicab," Edgar Selden and Melville J. Gideon's original taxicab song, continues to be the big sensation in Ziegfeld's "The Follies of 1908." Among the instrumental hits recently issued by Shapiro, the lively "rag," known as "Poison Ivy," leads the list. Other favorites are "Sonoma," "Daffy Down Dilly," "Colonia," "Clio" and Bring Dreams of You" and "When They're Bringing in the Corn," two Shapiro ballad hits. Netta Vesta, vaudeville comedienne, is scoring the triumph of her career singing the famous "kid" song, "Hoo-oo! Ain't You Coming Out To-night?" Ed. Morton writes that "Ev'ry Mother's Son There Sang 'The Wearing of the Green.'" is the hit of his act. Raymond and Harper report tremendous success singing "Honor Bright, I Loves Yer Right, Old Pal." Billy Gaston has a masterpiece in his newest song, named "Spooneyville." "It's Never Late Till Morning, and It's Early After That," is a comic "pippin" that singers of comedy songs will pluck speedily. Geo. Totten Smith is responsible for the lyric, and Melville J. Gideon supplied the music. Edgar Selden contemplates a six weeks' European vacation early in November. Mr. Seldon has been away from his post just five days since the Shapiro establishment threw open its doors, and has earned a much needed holiday. The Four Andersons are forging to the front with great strides. "Hoo-oo! Ain't You Coming Out To-Night?" is the song that is largely responsible for this. Maurice Shapiro has been giving special attention to the musical equipment of the big burlesque shows, this season, with the result that each will have feature songs and novelties that will in no way conflict with the show that precedes or follows. Edgar Selden is the recipient of glowing accounts of the success of Ethel Whitesides, the American Girl and her Picks, who have completely captured London and the provinces during their stay abroad. Miss Whitesides regularly "tops" the bill, and "Dixie Dan" is the conspicuous hit.

New Witmark Music.

Additions to the Witmark catalogue include five musical numbers from "Ragged Robin," Chauncey Olcott's new starring vehicle, and are claimed to be the most pleasing this actor has had in a number of years. Seven writers contributed their best efforts in these five numbers, they being Richard Le Gallienne, Chauncey Olcott, George Graff Jr., Ernest R. Ball, Daniel J. Sullivan, Manuel Klein and George Spink. The songs are as follows: "A Laugh With a Tear In It," by Chauncey Olcott and Manuel Klein; "Eyes That Come From Ireland," by Richard Le Gallienne and Chauncey Olcott; "If You'll Remember Me," by George Graff Jr. and Ernest R. Ball; "Sweet Girl of My Dreams," by Chauncey Olcott and Daniel J. Sullivan, and "I Used To Believe In Fairies," By George Spink. Ruth Elliott is scoring the hit of her life singing "Somebody Loves You, Dear," and "Love, Make My Dreams Come True." Claire Maynard, a comedienne from the West, has come East to offer in her singing act, the following high class songs: "Eolita," "Gay Butterfly," "As Long as the World Rolls On" and "Somebody Loves You Dear." Hagen and Westcott, with their two big song hits, "Just Someone" and "As Long as the World Rolls On," receive many encores. Gray F. Weller, baritone soloist, is singing to repeated encores, "As Long as the World Rolls On." The song hits of the North Pole musical comedy, "The Top o' th' World," the play in which Bailey and Austin, the grotesque vaudeville comedians, are starring, includes: "How'd You Like to be My Bow, Wow, Wow?" "Busy Mr. Bee," "Why Don't You?" "The One Girl" and "Little Brown Hen." Two new songs published by M. Witmark & Sons are destined to become distinct successes in the particular class to which they apply. One of them is a "kid song," by that master of song writting art, Will Dillon, who is singing it in vaudeville himself, with great success; the other is by Bert Fitzgibbon, who has established an enviable reputation as a song writer, and recently added much to his reputation by writing the words of Ernest R. Ball's tremendous hit, "You've Always Been the Same Old Pal," and the writer of "Just Because He Couldn't Sing 'Love Me and the World Is Mine.'" The new song is based on the popularity of the sheath gown, and is called "Since Katie Keith She Wears a Sheath," and is being introduced to the vaudeville public by Amelia Summerville.

Edwards' New Song Hits.

Gus Edwards announces that Johnnie Hoey, featured in "The Boy Detective," is putting on "Sunbonnet Sue" and "You're Just the Boy for Me." Wilbur Held, the "post card boy" with the Casino Girls, is singing "Sunbonnet Sue" and "A Little Bit's a Whole Lot Better Than Nothing at All." Hans Roberts is singing "Everybody Loves Me But the One I Love," "Twinkle, Twinkle, My Little Star," and "A Little Bit's a Whole Lot Better Than Nothing at All." are new songs announced by this house and are being sung in vaudeville and burlesque. Programmes received from London and other parts of Great Britain, show that a number of their songs are being sung "on the other side," among these being "That's What the Rose Said to Me," "See-Saw," "I'm Waiting for the Summer Time and You," "Everybody Loves Me But the One I Love," "Won't You Be My Baby Boy" and "School Days." New songs in the six new vaudeville acts Gus Edwards is now booking are "Sunbonnet Sue" and "You're Just the Boy for Me." The acts also include the popular sellers, "See-Saw," "Dear Old East Side," "Bye, Bye, Dear Old Broadway," "Won't You Be My Baby Boy?" "You Are My Firebug," "Does Anybody Want a Blonde" and "That's What the Rose Said to Me."

F. B. Haviland Notes.

Revere and Yuir are meeting with success singing "Down in Jungle Town," "Old Time Rag," "Santiago Flynn," "Make Believe" and "I've Taken Quite a Fancy to You." Theodore Morse returned from his vacation with an auto load of new melodies. Villiers and Wagner continue to use "Down in Jungle Town," and "Make Believe," and secure several encores at each performance. Jack Drislane is back on the job with this firm. Miss Pixley, with "The Creole Slave's Revenge" Co., had to respond to six encores of "Down in Jungle Town," at the Bijou Theatre, in Brooklyn, recently. Tommy Breen, Charles Miller, Jack Sturgis and Jack Drislane are the busy outside boys for this house. Grimm and Satchel are meeting with tremendous success with "Down in Jungle Town" and "Dear Old Yankee Land."

THE GROENE MUSIC PUBLISHING CO., of Cincinnati, O., have issued two new songs—one called "Little Arrow," by Payne and Esberger, which is just the song for any good act; also the ballad, "I Think Her Name Is Gladys, But it May Be Mary Jane," by Appleton and Parker. Both songs are decided hits on their first trial.

New Music Firm.

T. B. Harms and Francis, Day & Hunter, New York, music publishers, have been incorporated, having a capital of $24,000 and the following directors: Louis Dreyfus, Frederick Day, Max Dreyfus and Jerome D. Kern.

THE FRED FISHER MUSIC PUB. CO. writes: "While prosperity may bring about a certain amount of 'Happiness,' there is but one real measure of 'Happiness.' The very latest New York song hit, 'Happiness,' set to the best music and words published for years, tells what this complete brand of 'Happiness' is—and that is Love. The music of 'Happiness' is particularly happy; it is by far above the range of published songs."

Two of the popular numbers from the catalogue of the Schiller Music Pub. Co., "Sweet Rosie May" and "Oh, Won't You Tell Me Why?" are being featured by Josie Flynn, singing with Slafer's Band at Brighton Beach.

THE BELL BOYS' AND THE PICKANINNY TRIO are singing "Down in Georgia on Camp-meeting Day," "Think of Me When I Am Gone" and "Love Me All the Time," published by the Millbrook Music Publishing Co. They also issue: "Cuddle Up and Call Me Honey," "Meet Me, Pretty Mildred" and "Tell Me in the Twilight." These songs should become sure winners. Billy Broad, the wandering minstrel, is singing "It's a Long Way Back to the Station."

THAT LATE SONG HIT, "I Wish I Had a Girl," seems to grow stronger every day in the East, and it looks as if it will be more popular here than in the West, where it is one of the biggest hits of the season. H. Herman Nathan is in New York with this song, and others of the Thompson Music Co. publications.

THE FRASER HIGHLANDERS BAND, of Toronto, Can., was the attraction at the Zoo, Cincinnati, O., nine days, ending Labor Day, which marked the sixteenth successful week of this, their initial tour. This tour opened May 21 at Luna Park, Cleveland, O., and included engagements at the large parks of Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, etc., in all of which places they gave unbounded satisfaction, thus proving themselves to be a strong feature attraction for park purposes, at the same time securing an exceptionally high position in the opinion of the music-loving public. Their Cincinnati engagement will be followed by a tour of the principal cities of the maritime provinces and the New England States, concluding with several weeks of vaudeville.

All-Over-the-Country Advertising for New York Hippodrome.

Shubert & Anderson have planned an all-over-the-country advertising campaign for the New York Hippodrome. They have just leased from the Ringling Bros.' Circus and the Barnum & Bailey Show, also controlled by the Ringling's, four of their large advertising cars used in advance of the shows. These cars are now in the West and South, and in a few weeks will be sent to Winter quarters. Instead of sending the cars directly in, the Hippodrome management will stock each with thousands of sheets of printing and billing for the big playhouse and its new production. A crew of eight bill posters will be carried on each car.

Railroad arrangements are being made to route these cars through with stops at every city, town and village in the country. Two of the Barnum & Bailey cars are now at San Francisco. One of these will take the Northern route to its destination at Winter quarters in Bridgeport, while the other will go over the Southern route, through Texas, the Gulf States and up the Atlantic coast. The cars of the Ringling Circus will cover the middle West. In this way, Shubert & Anderson, following the circus method of billing, will cover the entire country with Hippodrome billing. Over 500,000 pieces of paper have been ordered to stock the various cars. John Ringling, who is now with the Barnum Show, will start the cars from the Coast.

Morris Signs Amelia Bingham.

William Morris announced last week that he had signed a contract with Amelia Bingham, to appear in vaudeville, on his circuit, beginning Oct. 19. She will use a novelty, entitled "The Big Scenes of Great Plays," in which she will give the climaxes of four of the plays in which she has appeared in former years.

A short time ago the Shuberts published the engagement of Miss Bingham for their forces, and they have not since made any mention of her leaving their management.

Frank Moulan and Maud Lillian Berri Sign with Wm. Morris.

Frank Moulan and Maud Lillian Berri will appear in vaudeville this season, having booked the season solid with the Morris office. They are rehearsing a farce written by Wilbur Nesbit, called "The Hair and the Heiress," a skit of fun and music, with comic songs for Mr. Moulan and arias for Miss Berri.

A Glance at Acts New to the Metropolis.

BY HANK.

"The Van Dyck."

Cosmo Gordon Lennox's sketch, "The Van Dyck," which the programme calls a "tragic comedy," was given its vaudeville premiere last week, at the Colonial, with Harrison Hunter in the role of the "insane" visitor to the artist's studio. It will be remembered that this little piece was one of the several put on by Arnold Daly when that disciple of Shaw was obsessed with the notion that New York was pining for a "Theatre of Ideas."

The one thing lacking in "The Van Dyck" is its failure to make clear at the start that the artist of the story is a "four-flush" and a nuisance. The Colonial audiences last week did not quite grasp that fact, and it was only when the surprising finish came that they seemed to understand the humor of the thing.

Its scene is laid in the flat of John Peters, an artist, who is a bad composer of music, but who has some valuable paintings and furnishings, and a costly violin. He is a nuisance to the neighbors, and is pounding out an atrocious piece of music on the piano when a well dressed, well appearing gentleman enters his apartment. This gentleman introduces himself to Peters as Arthur Blair Woldingham, and when he gets the artist's ear he pours forth a tale of blood-curdling horror, confessing to having murdered a man and exulting that no one knows of the crime. But suddenly he bethinks himself that he has confided his story to Peters, and with the cry that Peters knows all and means to betray him he chases the poor artist around the flat, swearing that he must kill him.

Just then a bewhiskered individual, accompanied by four men, throws open the door, and tells Peters that his strange visitor is a lunatic, and that he is the doctor of the asylum. Peters, thankful that he has been saved in the nick of time, consents to leave the room while the doctor secures the "lunatic," and once they have the key turned on him all six men (the "lunatic" and the "doctor" included) strip the flat of all its furnishings and depart, leaving only a painting by Van Dyck. Peters finally breaks out of the room, surveys his empty flat, and as the curtain falls, murmurs his thanks that the robbers left him the Van Dyck.

Harrison Hunter played the "lunatic" with cleverness, and Martin Boyle, as the artist, suggested that addle-pated individual nicely. Jerry King was the doctor. The act ran about eighteen minutes, on the full stage.

"In the Subway."

Violet Black and company played "In the Subway," a new one act comedy, by Edgar Allen Woolf, at the Fifth Avenue last week, closing the bill for the opening performance. Last Monday the sketch was handicapped by its position, and did not make much of an impression. Later in the week, however, it was moved up a great deal earlier on the bill, and went better.

The setting given it is worthy of better material, the scene depicting with startling fidelity a station on New York's underground. The steps leading down from the street, the ticket window, the chopper's box, the newsstand and the paneled walls are all there, and back stage are the tracks, a cleverly arranged moving picture giving the impression that an express train is passing at one point in the act.

Mr. Woolf's idea is a good one, but he tries to crowd too much into his story. A vigorous overhauling should be given the sketch, which offers many good opportunities for fun-making, few of which have been taken advantage of.

It appears that Stephen Elton, a young business man, is on his way downtown to business, and while waiting in the subway for a train he reads in his newspaper that a young man has been masquerading as a woman, and has succeeded in getting the cards of a number of young fellows with whom he has flirted. Just then Betty Trimble, a young stenographer, comes down to catch a train, and finds that she has no money with which to buy a ticket. Elton pays her fare, for which she is very thankful, and asks him for his card. Immediately he recalls what he has just read concerning the masquerader, and takes Betty for the clever young fellow of the newspaper article. Upon this all the complications hinge, and some of them are amusing. Eventually it is shown that Betty is a sister of Elton's chum, and is on her way to begin her duties in his (Elton's) employ.

Violet Black did some very praiseworthy work as Betty, and Arthur Forbes, though a trifle noisy, was good as Elton. Eugene Keith made a funny ticket chopper, and Herbert Morris and E. W. Brown assisted. The act ran about twenty-five minutes, on the full stage.

Hyman Meyer.

Hyman Meyer, in Dutch make-up of the familiar and regulation kind, was third on the Colonial bill last week, in a pianologue, with a dash of ventriloquial imitation at the finish. Mr. Meyer springs quite a surprise on his audience when he walks into view with every evidence of being prepared for a monologue turn in Dutch dialect, and then suddenly sits down at the piano to play and sing.

He "butts in" on himself with remarks of a fairly humorous nature, and soon gets his auditors laughing. His ventriloquial bit, with which he finishes, is clever. He pretends that he has a chicken concealed in the piano, and after great care and much clucking on the part of the fowl he gets her out, and she consents to give a solo while he accompanies her on the piano. He calls her his "Chicken Patti," and gets a great deal of fun out of the squeaking tune "sung" by the bird. There were several bows demanded before the audience would allow Mr. Meyer to withdraw. His act ran about seventeen minutes, on the full stage.

Daisy (Lloyd) Wood.

There is no disputing the fact that England has the lead as regards singing comediennes, and Daisy (Lloyd) Wood, of the famous Lloyd family, whose American debut was made last week at the Lincoln Square, under Wm. Morris' direction, is right up in the front rank of her country's leading singers of comic ditties.

Daisy Wood is young and pretty, and has a charm of manner and a refreshing lack of affectation that wins half the battle for her before she is fairly launched upon her act. When these advantages are coupled with a keen appreciation of humor in delivering her songs, and an intelligent and winsome rendering of the lines, the result may be imagined.

It is not extravagant praise to say that she is exceptionally clever, and it is a matter of regret that she has such a short time to remain here, her present season in this country being confined to ten weeks.

Five songs last week were none too many, and the singer was given a rousing reception, being permitted to withdraw only under strong protest.

Of her songs, "Whistle and I'll Wait for You" made the biggest hit, and the boys fairly raised the roof with it. "Paddling," "Hop It" and "Automobiling" were fair numbers, which were helped along a great deal by the singers' cleverness, and "Stop the Flip-Flap" was the most tuneful, getting all the audience humming.

Miss Wood has worked practically all the leading vaudeville theatres in Scotland and England, both in London and the provinces, and has played the part of principal girl in several London pantomimes. She will return to England early in December, as she is under engagement to play principal girl in Chute's pantomime, "Aladdin," at the Princess Theatre, Bristol.

George McManus.

Geo. McManus, the creator of "The Newlyweds and their Baby," following in the wake of "Silas" and other knights of the pencil and crayon, has arranged a brief and rather pleasing vaudeville offering, made up of his best known sketches. He made his first New York appearance last week at the Alhambra.

Upon the regulation large pad of paper, placed on an easel, Mr. McManus made his sketches and cartoons, which included a picture of Mr. Newlywed and a likeness of the large-mouthed scion of that house. The young hopeful was seated in a little bathtub, and after the sketch was finished Mr. McManus turned up the lower part of the picture, covering everything but the upper part of the infant's head. Then, with a few marks the infant became the bald-pated candidate for president, Wm. J. Bryan.

As a finish to his act the cartoonist made a pretty picture of the comely Mrs. Newlywed, showing her with a red rose in her hair and in all the glory of her fluffy hirsute adornment. The act was well worth seeing. It ran about ten minutes, in one.

Selma Braatz.

Selma Braatz, who is in a class by herself as a female juggler, has returned to American vaudeville after an absence of some time, and last week, at the Fifth Avenue, she amazed and delighted her audiences by the finish and class of her work.

Her tricks with the billiard cues stood out sharply in her clever series of feats, but there was no let-up to the intense interest in her act during its entire progress. Her whirling of torches, with their changing lights on a darkened stage, captured plenty of applause. The act ran about fourteen minutes, on the full stage.

Czaress Life Guards.

The Czaress Life Guards, a man and nine girls, appeared at the Alhambra last week, presenting a Russian dancing, singing and wall scaling act. The young fellow does the heel dancing characteristic of the Russians with grace and agility, whirling about in lively manner.

Singing and dancing of a fair order take up part of the time, and a zouave drill is splendidly executed, winning a great deal of applause.

As a finish the man is hoisted to the top of a wall, and the girls scale the face of it with surprising rapidity. The act is no great departure from the usual run, but its execution entitles it to consideration. It ran about fifteen minutes.

Lena Young Recovers Lost Money.

Lena Young, of the Two Youngs, while playing Springfield, Mass., recently, lost $200 in Forbes & Wallace's store, in that city. She had given up all hopes of recovering the money, but upon her return to New York she found awaiting her at THE CLIPPER office a letter in which was her lost property.

Miss Young is naturally very grateful, but is unable to thank the one who returned her money because the party signed no name to the letter returning the bills, nor was any clue given as to his or her identity.

Minnie Burke Injured.

Minnie Burke broke her leg evening of Sept. 22, while appearing at the Empire Theatre, Albany, N. Y., as the jockey, in Frank Finney's sketch, "Fifty-to-One Shot." Middle West Houses to be Booked by Martin Beck.

Adds Many Theatres to Orpheum Bookings.

A dispatch from Chicago conveys the important advice that hereafter all the vaudeville theatres of the middle West, including the Kohl & Castle houses, those of the Anderson & Ziegler, both houses in St. Louis, in Louisville and Milwaukee, will be booked under the general direction of Martin Beck, in conjunction with those of the Orpheum circuit, of which Mr. Beck is general manager.

This change in the booking arrangement was decided upon at a meeting held at the Majestic Theatre, Chicago, last Tuesday, at which the following vaudeville managers were present: M. Meyerfeld Jr., C. E. Kohl, George Castle, George Middleton, M. C. Anderson, H. M. Ziegler, J. J. Murdock and Martin Beck.

It is stated that this policy was adopted after J. J. Murdock had expressed a desire to remain permanently in Chicago, his home, and to devote his attention exclusively to the Olympic Theatre, in that city, in which he has just acquired sufficient stock to have personal control.

Mr. Murdock announces that after extensive alterations to the Olympic, it is his intention to operate it along the same lines that made the Masonic Temple Theatre popular under his management, with smoking permitted and important all star bills as the attraction.

The new booking arrangement includes the Majestic and Haymarket theatres, in Chicago, as well as the Olympic, the American and Columbia theatres in St. Louis; the new Majestic Theatre, in St. Louis; the new Majestic Theatre, in Milwaukee; the Grand Opera House, in Indianapolis; the Columbia Theatre, in Cincinnati; the Mary Anderson Theatre, in Louisville; theatres in Des Moines, Grand Rapids, and all the Orpheum theatres, making thirty-four first class houses in all.

De Mille Offices to Book Vaudeville.

New songs will be introduced, besides the special music which has been written for the production.

Harry Le Clair Sings "The Devil."

Leslie Carter Dead.

Leslie Carter, former husband of Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne, died Sept. 25, in Chicago, after a long illness. He suffered a stroke of paralysis several years ago, and recently had a narrow escape from asphyxiation by illuminating gas. OUR CHICAGO LETTER.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

Western Bureau of the New York Clipper, 505 Ashland Block, Randolph and Clark Streets.

SEPT. 26, 1908.

Changes in the downtown houses for the week commencing Sept. 27, include: "Fifty Miles from Boston," at the Auditorium, for the policemen's benefit (three weeks); house dark at the Studebaker during final rehearsals of "The Prima Donna," in which Fritzi Scheff will open Oct. 6; Wilton Lackaye, in "The Battle," at the Grand; "Graustark," at the Great Northern, and the usual changes at the vaudeville and burlesque houses, together with the outlying vaudeville, stock and burlesque houses. Sans Souci, which closes to-morrow night, and Riverview, which is open only Saturdays and Sundays, are the only parks left which bid for favor now, the others having closed last week. The Hagenbeck & Wallace Shows come in another week, on the South Side, for three weeks. With the exception of the new Garden Theatre and the International, every house in the city is now open, and the latter will open Oct. 5, with grand opera, the former opening within a few days following.

ILLINOIS. (Will J. Davis, manager).—The success of Mabel Taliaferro, in "Polly of the Circus," has been phenomenal, and the young star and her associates have come to be big favorites. The coming week is the last of the engagement, though it could run for weeks to come. "The Waltz Dream" Oct. 5.

POWERS' (Harry J. Powers, manager).—"The Servant in the House" is enjoying excellent business all the time, and the engagement is one of the most successful this house has known in many moons. Ben Field has succeeded Galway Herbert in the role of the page boy.

GARRICK (Herbert C. Dace, manager).—Lew Fields and "The Girl Behind the Counter," together with the interpolated Salome dance of Lotta Faust, will leave here next Saturday. Hubert Neville, who has been out of the cast, owing to illness, is again playing. William Faversham, in "The World and his Wife," Oct. 5. Willard Langley has succeeded John T. McArty as superintendent of the house.

AUDITORIUM (Milward Adams, manager).—After three weeks of riotous fun, the Cohan & Harris Minstrels, headed by George Evans, leave to-night, and "Fifty Miles from Boston" comes for the three weeks of the annual policemen's benefit fund. Joseph Sparks, Hazel Lowry and Suzanne Westford are members of the company.

COLONIAL (George W. Lederer, manager).—George Cohan, in "The Yankee Prince," is doing top-notch business, hundreds being turned away at every performance, and a long line to be seen in the lobby at all hours, endeavoring to buy seats for weeks ahead. George and Josephine Cohan have introduced their new song and dance, "The A. B. C's of the U. S. A.," and it is a big hit, and requires numerous encores before the audiences have had enough.

STUDEBAKER (Ed. J. Sullivan, manager).—"The Top o' the World," which has run since July 4 last, closes to-night, and next week the house is dark to give opportunity for final rehearsals of Fritzi Scheff's new opera, "The Prima Donna." It is stated that over 150,000 people have seen "The Top o' th' World," which, if true, about establishes a record for Summer attendance. Fritzi Scheff will have 128 people in her new company, and the orchestra will be augmented to thirty-five pieces. In the cast will be seen: W. J. Ferguson, James E. Sullivan, William Harcourt, William Raymond, Margaret May, Herbert Ayling, St. Clair Bayfield, Robert E. Clarke, George W. McNamara, Philip B. Yanson, Armand Cortez, Donald Hall, Martin Hayden, Josephine Bartlett, Ellen Carr, Lizzie Conway, Renee Dyris, Bertha Holly, Blanche Morrison and Grace Spencer.

MCVICKER'S (George C. Warren, manager).—"The Lion and the Mouse," with Edmund Breese in his original character of John Burkett Ryder, has been doing splendidly, and is presented with all the detail which has marked its portrayal in the higher priced houses. Dorothy Donnelly is appearing as Shirley Rossmore, and is a big favorite with the audiences. Dockstader's Minstrels Oct. 4, Chauncey Olcott, in "Ragged Robin," 11.

GRAND (Harry Askin, manager).—Louis Mann, in "The New Generation," has pleased every one who has seen his performance, and during the engagement here changes have been made in the play which have improved it greatly. A professional matinee was given 22, and the house was crowded by the players working in the city, and also many clergymen who had been invited by the management. Wilton Lackaye, in Cleveland Moffett's new play, "The Battle," 27.

CHICAGO (George A. Kingsbury, manager).—Possibly the unseasonable heat and humidity of the past week may have been caused by the advent in town of three distinct Satans, last Sunday, but be that as it may, Henry E. Dixey came to this house 20, in Henry W. Savage's production of "The Devil," following "Ticey," and the house has held fine audiences during the week. Mr. Dixey gave us an entirely new version of his Satanic Majesty, and that he pleased is proved by the houses he draws. George Irving was announced to appear as the artist, but Edmund Elton appeared, he having been in the original cast at Hartford, when Mr.

27, with the assurance of good business. "Sold into Slavery" Oct. 4.

CALUMET (John T. Connors, manager).—This week, "The Rocky Mountain Express" and "The Life of an Actress" divided the spoils of big houses. "In at the Finish" 27-30, "The End of the Trail" Oct. 1-3, "The Indian's Secret" 4-7.

EUSON'S (Sid. J. Euson, manager).—The Blue Ribbon Girls enjoyed a fine week's business, closing to-night. The Hastings Show, a new one in town, comes 27, with the promise much that is as new as the name. "Frolicsome Frolics" and "A Summer's Night" are the burlesque offerings, with Viola Sheldon, a California beauty, as one of the principal drawing cards, and with Harry Hastings as principal comedian, backed up by a good list of comedians, singers and dancers. The olio includes: Tom Coyne, Vardon, Perry and Wilbur, Howard and Lewis, Mildred Flora, Mlle Iada, Campbell and Brady, and others. Amateur night, Friday, is the big noise on the North Side, and the house is packed regularly with those who go to have fun with aspiring amateurs, who seem to fear them not, for if at first they don't succeed, they go it again. The Parisian Widows Oct. 4.

FOLLY (John A. Fennessey, manager).—The Strolling Players did splendidly this week, and gave an entertainment which was very enjoyable. The Champagne Girls, 27, will be seen in "At Coney Island" and "On the Frontier," spoken of as two of the best burlesques ever offered. The principals include: Charles Nichols, Goff Phillips, Burton and Bass, Wells and Sells, and others, whose mission is to make all in front look happy, and feel the same. An excellent olio is also provided, and everything has been done to make this year's company worthy the reputation which has attached to this company in the past. The announcement is made that none of the old slap stick comedy and ancient jokes will be seen or heard in this performance. The Cherry Blossoms Oct. 4.

TROCADERO (I. M. Weingarten, manager).—The Parisian Widows have enjoyed a good week, and presented a very pleasing performance. Phil Sheridan's City Sports and Big Sensation Show is due 27, and comes with advance notices proclaiming the amount of ginger which it contains, and also the quantity of fine looking women, of which there are thirty. The company is said to be the best which Sheridan has ever assembled, and the staging is of the finest. There is a large olio of exceptional merit, and everything looks to a fine engagement. Battling Nelson, who recently won the championship from Joe Gans, has been engaged for every performance during the week, and probably thousands will be turned away. Happyland Burlesquers Oct. 4.

EMPIRE (I. Herk, manager).—Sam T. Jack's Burlesquers have had a fine week, and produced the same excellent attraction as seen on this side earlier in the season. The Dreamland Burlesquers come 27, with a large and competent company, added to which they have a fine olio, and as business has been better at this house of late than ever before, they will probably have a fine week. Miss New York Jr. Oct. 4.

STAR AND GARTER (U. J. Herrmann, manager).—Whatever there is good for the burlesque field on this circuit is secured for this house, which is classed among the finest burlesque houses in this country. The Rose Hill Co. gave excellent performances this week to big attendance. Fads and Follies comes 27, and the company is of the type to draw the capacity at every performance, for the olio has been strengthened, and the people are all good. The Lid Lifters Oct. 4.

LONDON DIME MUSEUM (W. J. Sweeney, manager).—Business continues excellent here, and the attractions are getting down to the regular Winter standard of quality, as many of the road shows are closing, and the curios and freaks are coming in from all sections of the country for work.

INTERNATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.—This big place on the South Side, in the stock yards region, will be the scene of gayety for three weeks, commencing Oct. 5, when the Hagenbeck Wallace Shows will perform for three weeks for the benefit of the Firemen's Beneficent Society of Chicago, and thousands of tickets have already been sold for the event. It is promised that the circus will have a record-breaking crowd, as the firemen are looking after the sale of tickets personally, and no one will deny assistance to such a worthy cause.

SANS SOUCI (Leonard Wolf, manager).—This park closes to-morrow night for the season, after the biggest business ever done here, and with the record of having seen the Summer out with only two bands, Creatore's and Ferullo's, both of which were great drawing cards. Many plans have been made for next season, and when the park re-opens next May it will be finer than ever. Manager Wolf is due a lot of credit for the manner in which he has conducted the park ever since it opened, and is one of the most popular men in the city.

RIVERVIEW (W. M. Johnson, manager).—The great big playground of the people is closed during the major portion of the week now, but on Saturdays and Sundays, until Oct. 11, it will be open, and the people can enjoy the rides, and many of the shows. Nothing has ever excelled the business which this place has done this year, and it is estimated that close on to 12,000,000 people have passed through the gates in search of the fun which they have always found.

AFTERMATH.

At Orchestra Hall, Oct. 1-3, with matinee 3, L. Frank Baum, famous as "The Wizard of Oz" man, will give his "Fairylogue and Radio Plays" and "John Dough and the Cherub," seats for which will be 25 cents to $1.50. The music for this has been specially written by Nathaniel D. Mann, of Chicago, of which there are twenty-seven numbers.

The Gans-Nelson fight pictures, which were taken for the Chicago Film Exchange by the Selig Polyscope Co., of Chicago, were first shown in this city at Schindler's Theatre and Trocadero, where the audiences crowded to witness them. At the former place, which is on the Northwest Side, thousands were turned away during the week, and those who were able to get in praised the energy and grit of Ludwig Schindler in going to the great expense of securing these for their benefit. Manager Schindler has always been aggressive and progressive, and has many good things up his sleeve for his patrons, and is deserving the success which has been his in the past few years.

Violet Grey writes me that she is playing the leads in E. H. Carpenter's "Her First False Step" Co., through Iowa at the present time, and says: "As the members of the company are all congenial, we contemplate a pleasant season. The one securing the first copy of THE CLIPPER is the popular one (for the time, at least)."

The Modern Music Publishers, who have offices in the Grand Opera House Block, report great success with their new waltz song, "Kiss Me, Dearie," which has only been on the market a short time. They have received more demands for it than for any of their other publications, and it is being sung at nearly all the local houses.

Manager Edwin Thanhouser, of the Bush Temple, has just received from Mrs. Mansfield the rights to produce "Beau Brummel." The revival will be made Oct. 26, and especial attention will be given to staging and detail.

Hugh Stuart Campbell, the artist who has drawn likenesses of many of the famous actors and actresses who have visited Chicago in the past few years, has just returned from New York, where he worked on a likeness of Mme. Alla Nazimova. One of his sketches of Georgia Drew Mendum, which is considered an excellent likeness, hangs in the Western Bureau of THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, inscribed by Miss Mendum to your representative.

George P. Mills, brother-in-law of the Garrick treasurer, and who has been a traveling salesman for a number of years, will make his stage debut in a short while, in "Drummer's Yarns," a vaudeville sketch, having already been booked on Western time, and will probably open in Denver.

Lotta Faust fainted in the wings of the Garrick Theatre, evening of 20, after finishing her song and dance, "When You Steal a Kiss or Two," and was unconscious for nearly an hour.

Mabelle Hammond, of "The Girl Behind the Counter" Co., is a great-great-granddaughter of Ephraim Hammond, founder of Hammondsport, N. Y.

The Chicago Costume Works, which has a large establishment on Dearborn Street, near Randolph, has made a great specialty of Indian and cowboy material, and a visit to their rooms shows the walls hung with all the paraphernalia which the redskins and cow-punchers wear on the plains. The company has agents through the West, who send them the very best makings from the expert Indian manufacturers, and thus they are in a position to gratify the wishes of all, actors and others.

The announcement is now made that the company playing "The Servant in the House" at Powers', will be taken to London next March to appear there, and that Henry Miller will appear at the same time in the British metropolis, in "The Great Divide."

Thomas E. Shea will shortly be seen at the Majestic in a condensed version of "The Bells," in the regular play of which he has toured the country in the popular priced. Later he will be seen in "The Florentine Tragedy."

Gladys Cardwell, of this city, has been engaged for the International Grand Opera Co., to sing small parts. She sang in the chorus of the grand opera company at the International last season, under the direction of Joseph Sheehan and William Wade Hinshaw.

The Chicago Tribune, with an eye to the Tribune Hospital Fund for Babies, toward which many theatrical companies have contributed, engaged Orchestra Hall afternoons of 23, 24, to report the Cubs-Giants games in New York City, the field being plainly shown on a large board, and all the movements of the players being marked with electric lights. The hall was filled to capacity at both performances, and the fund netted a considerable amount.

The famous Thirteenth Regiment Band, of Canada (The Hamiltonians), will give a concert at the Garrick afternoon of Oct. 12, under the auspices of St. Bernard Commandery No. 35, K. T.

The new home of the Chicago Musical College is nearing completion, and will be one of the handsomest buildings on Michigan Avenue. Arrangements are being made for a housewarming when the proper time comes. The building is thoroughly fireproof, and is divided into a hall seating 900, and offices and studios, all of which are soundproof.

A new drop curtain has been hung in the Olympic, and is from the Daniels Scenic Studios. It is one of the finest specimens of advertising curtains ever seen, and is a credit to the studios which have long had the reputation of getting out excellent work. It has been commented on by many people, and is a source of great pride to the people responsible.

Charles Prince, the "Fat," in "A Stubborn Cinderella," was a caller this week. Mr. Prince is a great favorite with all the people at the house. He is a great baseball enthusiast, and organized a team at the theatre this Summer, which has done fine work right along.

Gordon Walton left here 19, for Davenport, Ia., where he opened in "His Last March," with Eddie Grey, who played it all this Summer at White City. Walton is a hard and conscientious worker, and deserves success in whatever he does.

Beatrice Liddell, who manages the pony ballet at the Garrick, won the gold medal for endurance dancing in the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, outlasting eighteen of the best European dancers.

Connie Ediss announces her intention of taking out naturalization papers on her return to New York in a short time. She has bought an estate in the Berkshire Hills, where her brother is located, and they hope to be American citizens in three years.

Pauline Devere Litteral was a caller this week, and brought your representative three very handsome photographs of herself, which she had taken during her last tour on the road. They are not only excellent likenesses of her, but are works of art in the photographic line.

George B. French, who played here in vaudeville last Summer, writes from his home in Great Falls, Mont., where he will stay this Winter, and states that he is enjoying life there, but hasn't quite settled down, as it is rather hard to get out of the old rut. He has been doing a little work for the Northern Montana Fair Association, the meeting of which is held Sept. 21-25.

Newell and Niblo, the traveling Chicagoans, write me from Zurich, Switzerland, on a beautiful specimen of Swiss postal coloring: "We are having a most delightful time, and a fine engagement here among the Alps. Have been up the big peaks and to Luzerne and down the lakes. Go next to Stuttgart, Germany. Best regards." And I notice they use the London Office of THE NEW YORK CLIPPER for their address. When they get to Berlin they'll meet P. Richards.

Rollo Timponi is now assistant treasurer of the Illinois. He was formerly at Powers' Theatre, and is very well known among theatregoers.

Frank Wilstach has been in the city, ahead of William Faversham, getting things ready for the opening date of his star, in "The World and His Wife."

George Stevens, editor of The Chicago Weekly Amusement Guide, returned to the city last week, after a protracted visit in the East, and is feeling all the better for the trip. He has had a long and hard season, and deserved the rest.

Punch Wheeler writes me that Howard Thurston, for whom the redoubtable Punch is agent, opened his season in Norfolk to big business, and made a hit with the newest programme in magic. He states that Mr. Thurston will play the Great Northern this season.

A company is to be organized to play "A Girl at the Helm" on the road, opening at Joliet, Ill., Christmas Day. The piece has been very successful here, and Mort Singer feels justified in this move. The company playing "A Stubborn Cinderella" on the road has played to capacity business everywhere.

Emmett Corrigan, who has appeared here in numerous dramatic productions, as well as being a favorite in vaudeville, is a booking at the Majestic in the near future, in a new sketch.

Mabel Barrison and Joe Howard are back in town.

George S. Wilson, of the Musical Wilsons, writes from Oklahoma City, Okla.: "We opened here 14 at Delmar Gardens on the Hodkin time for one week, with other time to follow, and, although we had not worked for three months, and I was just out of bed, after two weeks' illness with fever, we made a decided hit. We had first place on the bill, and the audience numbered about one hundred and fifty, as the weather was fierce. Not only this, we put on our act without an orchestra rehearsal of any kind."

The drop curtain for the new Garden Theatre is being painted by St. John Lewis. The lighting of the theatre will be an entirely new idea, and will be done almost entirely from the ceiling.

B. C. Whitney and Sam P. Gerson are organizing a company to send "A Broken Idol" on the road, and the company will open about Dec. 1.

Andy Adams was a caller 24, having just returned from a very successful Summer season with the Dawson Concert Co. He says the company enjoyed more prosperity than any previous season. He and his wife, Jennie Adams, will open at the Premier, 28, on the Frank Queen Doyle time, in "The Dutchman and the Old Maid," and will play the rest of the Doyle time. They are enjoying themselves at their new home in Austin, a suburb of this city.

The Wachsner Co., of Milwaukee, opened its local season at Powers', 20, presenting for the first time here "Der Letze Funke" ("The Last Spark"), comedy by Oscar Blumenthal and Gustave Kadelburg, and the house was crowded by the loyal local Germans, who take great pride in their Sunday night gatherings here.

Arthur G. Hall, manager of the Marvel Theatre, Birmingham, Ala., and his brother, were callers 21, being in town to see what could be done in the line of booking vaudeville acts for their houses. They report prospects as being very bright for things vaudeville in the South this season.

When Robert B. Mantell comes to the Grand, in November, he will be seen in thirteen different roles, two of which will be new, in so far as his stellar career is concerned. These are Claude Melnotte, in "The Lady of Lyons," and the title role in "Louis XI." The other characters will include: King John, King Lear, Richard III, Othello, Hamlet, Iago, Brutus, Shylock, Macbeth and Richelieu. Quite a list to be given in three weeks.

Dr. Florenz Ziegfeld went to New York 22, to confer with Andreas Dippel and Gatti-Cazazzo about grand opera in this city this season. He is endeavoring to secure for Chicago four instead of the customary two weeks, as furnished heretofore by the Metropolitan Opera Co.

Charles B. Marvin has in his archives a play, entitled "The King of Rome," said to have been written by a Chicago critic, and which he will produce during the season.

Wilton Lackaye is having trouble with "The Battle," although it is a success, as he has had to try three women in one of the principal leading parts. Janet Beecher, clever woman, and Chicago resident, didn't fit the role she rehearsed in, and was succeeded by Julia Dean, last seen here in "The Round Up," but she wasn't a fit, and now Josephine Victor is being given a trial.

The license of the Virginia Theatre has been restored, as the management promised the authorities that they would see that there was no overcrowding allowed in the future. The house was dark for about a week.

Ben Teal will stage the new offering which will open the new Garden Theatre, and which is entitled "A Winning Miss." The book is by Harold Atteridge, and the music by William Frederick Peters.

The State Normal Institute, of Valley City, N. D., has appointed Robert Boice Carson, a Chicago tenor, as director of music.

There is a very busy man at the College Theatre, and his name is T. Edward McGillan. He has been connected with stock organizations for so long that he hardly knows what a road company means. He comes of a theatrical family also, at least a dozen members of which having been on the stage at different times. Besides himself there are Virginia Keating, who is now in Madison, Wis., in a stock; Eugene, now stage manager of "The Man from Home," and Willard, in a "Parsifal" Co., on the road. Edward McGillan is a very useful member of the stock company on the North Side, and it would be hard to get him away from that organization.

Fulton Theatre Opens.

The Fulton Theatre was added to the list of Brooklyn vaudeville houses, night of Sept. 26. The house is located at Fulton Street, near Nostrand Avenue, in what is termed the Bedford Section. It has a frontage on Fulton Street and runs back to Macon Street. The building was erected at a cost of something like $300,000, and is owned by a syndicate, of which Louis Beer is president, Charles Reinhardt, vice president, and Nathan Stern, secretary.

The theatre is entirely constructed of steel, iron and stone, and is considered absolutely fireproof. All the latest improvements in emergency and fire apparatus have been installed, and the ventilation and heating system have received due consideration.

The decorations are a blending of gold and blue, and the electric light system is so arranged as to give bright, but yet subdued effects. The stage is equipped with a large and complete supply of scenery and stage implements.

The attractions will be vaudeville at moderate prices, with special reduced daily matinees. William Morris, Inc., is doing the booking for the Fulton.

For the opening the bill included: The Four Mortons, Charles J. Ross and Mabel Fenton, Cliff Gordon, Grace Cameron, Yamomoto, Caryl Wilbur, in a new version of his "61 Prospect Street," supported by his English company; the Romanos, Smirl and Kessner, and motion pictures. The theatre will be a two a day house.

The staff: William Trimborn, manager; Henry J. Bossom, treasurer; George E. O'Brien, assistant treasurer; William E. Stafer, musical director; James L. Schonberg, stage manager; Saul Lux, electrician; Edward A. Gartner, master of properties; George Fostner, advertising agent.

Bobby Gaylor in Doubt as to His Identity.

Bobby Gaylor, the redoubtable "Bobby," who has charmed vaudeville audiences for many years, called at the Western Bureau of THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, in Chicago, on Saturday, Sept. 26, and stated that some performer was using his name in St. Paul, at the Majestic Theatre. As Bobby stated, he "had knowp that as his name for over forty years, and if he wasn't Bobby Gaylor then he must have been doped for a good many years."

He wants it understood that his address under any and all circumstances is 5602 Fifth Avenue, or care of the White Rats of America, Saratoga Hotel, Chicago, Ill., and all mail should be addressed to him there, and not on the road. He is getting ready to go in vaudeville again later in the season.

Chas. H. Falke Joins H. J. King.

Chas. H. Falke, formerly of Falke and Seamon, has joined hands with H. J. King. They will present a new act in vaudeville, entitled "Waiting by the Stream," a travesty.

Sale Report Denied.

The report that the Miner Estate has purchased Adler's Grand Theatre, New York, which was an Eastern wheel house for a few weeks last season, and is now playing Stair & Havlin attractions, has been denied by Jacob P. Adler and Henry C. Miner.

MORNING GLORIES BURLESQUERS (Eastern).
Olympic Theatre, New York City, Sept. 28.

This company, under the management of Eugene J. Hall, began a week's engagement at this house Monday matinee, to a fair sized audience. "In Zululand," a three act musical comedy, served to introduce the members of the company in songs, dances and ensembles. Those who figured most prominently in the burlesque were: Clare Evans, Edwin Niner, Walter Kelly, Frank C. Holland, Harry Feldman, O. C. Mach, Gus Alexander, Wm. Roll, Sam White, Carl Barlow, Dell Laque, Lee Laque, Ward Percy, Grace La Vell, Lulu Ellsworth, Lullette Niner and Babette.

There was a bevy of pretty girls in the songs, tableaux, marches and choruses, and the costumes, in which many changes were made, were of tasty design and rich in material. During the action of the piece several finely arranged musical numbers were introduced by leading members of the company, and included: A laughing song, by Alexander and chorus, was easily the best; the Garland Quartette sang several songs, and were very successful. Babette, in her "Salome" dance, was encored several times. A specialty introduced by Edwin and Lullette Niner, was the hit of the performance.

The chorus included: Miss Paret, Miss Quinn, Miss Field, Miss Sterling, Miss Edmonds, Miss E. Muller, Miss Stewart, Miss Judge, Miss Clark, Miss Abromson, Miss Mouri, Miss Pomery, Miss J. Muller, Miss Pedini, Miss Wise, Miss C. Budna, Miss E. Dudna, Miss Traynor, Miss Bisdale, Miss Delaney, Miss Oliver.

PAT WHITE'S GAIETY GIRLS (Western).
Miner's Eighth Avenue Theatre, New York City, Sept. 28.

Pat White and his Gaiety Girls opened their first engagement of the season at this house on the above date. The company was heartily welcomed, and the old favorites were shown that they had not been forgotten. The burlesques were: "Doings in Mudville" and "The Night of the Fight; or, the Roman Athletic Club." Though they have not much plot they are full of life, and things go with a rush. The chorus is as pleasing as ever, and does good work. Pat White was as funny as could be, and drew many laughs. Margie Catlin was also good. Shapely and clever Anna Grant pleased. The many musical numbers were well rendered. In the olio: Anna Grant and Margie Catlin, as "The Lady and the Flirt," made a hit by their clever talk and good singing; the Three Musical Wilsons gave an instrumental act that was well appreciated; the Malvern Troupe did some sensational acrobatic work that "brought the house to their feet;" George S. Davis' fine voice was heard to advantage in illustrated songs.

AMERICANS (Western).
London Theatre, New York, Sept. 28.

The Americans opened Sept. 28 with a fine bill, including "Morocco Bound," in two acts, with Wilbur Dobbs as the principal comedian, and Leo Doherty in the role formerly played by Frankie Grace. The olio included: Francis and Rogers, Wilbur Dobbs and company, Gertrude Fiske, the Great Chick, the American Quartette. The Londonscope showed interesting Pathe films of scenes in New York. The numbers, especially an Oriental dance in the second act, were encored. Thursday is amateur night at the London.

YANKEE DOODLE GIRLS (Western).
Miner's Bowery Theatre, N.Y., Sept. 28.

"At the Springs" and "Seeing New York" are the two comedies, and the olio includes: Charles Collins and Hawley, Harry Hearn and company, in "Doctor's Troubles;" Harry and Julia Seyon, and the Grotesque Randolphs. The Marvelous Leonard gave an exhibition of jail breaking and escaping from a galvanized can full of water. Amateur nights are announced here on Fridays.

Andy Lewis and His New Show.

Andy Lewis will close with Al. Reeves' Beauty Show at the Murray Hill Theatre, New York, Oct. 3. He will commence rehearsals 5 for his big show, which he claims will be a sensation in the burlesque world. The company will be composed of forty people. Twenty chorus girls and ten chorus men will round out the organization. Virginia Royden will be featured in the olio in an Apache dance; Andy Lewis and Maud Elliott will offer their sketch, "Won at the Wire." Several other big acts are to be announced later.

THE AL. REEVES SHOW (Eastern).
Murray Hill Theatre, New York, Sept. 28.

This popular attraction made its first New York appearance for this season Sept. 28, before good sized houses, who enjoyed the lively and pretty entertainment provided by Al. Reeves, Andy Lewis and all the other members. "A Merry-Go-Round" opened the show with a handsomely illuminated set. A card showed the name of each girl as they entered singly, arrayed in handsome gowns, followed by the male members, in automobile togs. Grand opera selections were well sung by the entire company, which was cast as follows: Nezz Brinkley, Jeane Lansford; An Heiress, Maude Elliott; Anna Held, Alice Jordan; A Wife, Irene Burton; Jack Hazard's creation, Virginia Royden; A Contractor, Edwin Morris; A Brewer, Harry Sheppell; A Bellboy, Joe Manne; A Society Man, Courtney Burton; An Actor, Max Gordon; A Nobleman, Marty Ward; A Nobleman, Ben Small; A Nobleman, Sam Madelewski.

Maude Elliott gave an excellent imitation of being in an inebriated condition; Miss Lansford sang and acted well; Alice Jordan was acceptable in the French role; Virginia Royden acted sufficiently tough; Edwin Morris, in funny make-up, and Harry Sheppell were quietly effective in their Irish and German roles, respectively; Joe Manne was a lively bellboy; Max Gordon, as the actor, looked the part. "The Land of Cotton" was well sung by Joe Manne and Miss Jordan, with light effects; "Aint It Awful, Mabel," sung by Miss Royden, was encored; "Theatricals," sung by Ben Small, and impersonated by the company, showed a burlesque melodrama, a burlesque on illustrated songs, and finished with the sextetie from "Lucia," well sung and repeatedly encored. "Highland Mary" was sung by Joe Manne, with the girls in attractive Scotch costumes, dancing Highland steps in gingery fashion. —More encores. "Napanee" was the Indian number, led by Max Gordon. The girls were bunched, and, with wriggling hands, made an effective spotlight group. A pretty Spanish dance, led by Miss Royden, was also applauded.

The olio: Burton and Burton, playing cleverly on various musical instruments, with telling comedy work by Mr. Burton; Sam Madelewski and a troupe of Russian dancers, in national movements; Andy Lewis and company, in his sketch, "Won at the Wire," wherein, as the racetrack tout, he unloaded some choice talk of the turf; Maude Elliott and Virginia Royden assisted ably; Marty Ward and Harry Sheppell presented "The Keeper and the Lunatic," with Mr. Sheppell relating some of the creations of a disordered brain.

"Conology," with Al. Reeves as the chief con man, palming off Hyman Tupilinsky as a prince, was retained as the burlesque. Andy Lewis was funny as usual as the clothing store man. The numbers included: "Lamp post in New York Town," "Practical Mad," by Andy Lewis; "Bohemia" and "Ballet de Salome," led by Miss Royden. The ball room scene was very showy.

Sherman and Luken Join Broadway Girls.

Sherman and Luken, who were formerly connected with two big acts, and who formed a partnership about four months ago, doing a clever comedy acrobatic act, joined the Broadway Gaiety Girls, at Pittsburg, last week, and will be the feature act of the olio.

They took the place of the International Trio, who had been with the show since the opening of the season. Ed. Manny, of the trio, remains with the Gaiety Girls, doing comedy parts with M. J. Kelly. Jim Falco and his wife, Jennie, left for New York, after the show Saturday night.

The International Trio was a well known act in all the vaudeville houses, but through a little misunderstanding they decided to part company, and their two weeks' notice was up on Saturday.

NEW YORK CITY.

Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre (E. F. Albee, general manager).—The Six Musical Cuttys, who have returned to America after a successful tour abroad, were given a great reception Sept. 28, and their clever musical act never went better. The family are great favorites in this city. Robert Hilliard, assisted by Edwin Holland, Ida Desmond, Arthur Row and John Wolfe, appeared in the extremely well written and interesting little piece, "Convict 973." Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Holland winning acting honors. Ward and Curran were winners in "The Terrible Judge," Mr. Curran's song, "Childhood," and his clever impersonation of the Dago, the German, the Irishwoman and the effeminate cowboy bringing him into prominence. Victor Niblo and his talking birds made a hit. This act will be reviewed in our New Acts column next week. Others were Stella Mayhew, whose act is always up-to-date and clever; Bernardi, in his quick changes; Newhold and Carroll, remarkable acrobats, and Lew Sully, whose "Words and Music" is most entertaining, and who introduces his new song, "Wise Old Robinson Crusoe," which is a winner.

Stuyvesant Theatre (David Belasco, manager).—Mr. Belasco opened this house for the season Tuesday night, Sept. 22, presenting Blanche Bates and company in the first metropolitan production of The Fighting Hope, a play in three acts, by William J. Hurlbut. The play was originally acted Sept. 9, at the Belasco Theatre, Washington, D. C. The story tells of the efforts of a loyal wife to clear her husband's name of a crime for which he is serving a sentence of ten years. Prior to the opening, of the play Robert Granger, as cashier of the Gotham Trust Co., of New York, had certified a check drawn for $700,000 for one Brady. The check is paid and the trust company suspends when the financial crisis strikes the country. Granger is tried, convicted and sent to Sing Sing for ten years. Brady, who was a co-trustee with Burton Temple (president of the trust company) in an estate, in order to save himself, swings public sentiment in favor of Granger and against Temple, and the latter is about to be indicted. At this time Robert's wife, Anna, under an assumed name, enters Temple's employ as stenographer and typewriter. She firmly believes her husband to be innocent, and to clear his name and that of her two boys she determines to place the guilt upon Temple, who her husband has told her is the real culprit. In her position she is enabled to read all of her employer's letters, except those which come from a detective agency, and still she finds nothing to incriminate Temple. At last the expected comes. The Grand Jury indicts Temple, and he and his confidential adviser, Marshfield Craven, are in despair, when they receive from the detective agency a letter which proves Granger's guilt. It was written by him to Brady before the check was certified, and explains the case fully, even to the fact that Brady is to pay Granger $100,000 for the job. This letter is put in a safe, and when Temple and Craven leave the room, Anna takes it, expecting to find the evidence she desires. When she fully realizes what the contents of the letter mean to her, she, in a moment of frenzy, burns the letter. Temple, who has learned to love Miss Dale (as Anna is known to him), now that his name is cleared, tells her of his love. She then tells him she is the wife of Granger, and that she burned the letter. Granger escapes from prison and appears on the scene, saying he has been pardoned. Anna tells him she knows of his guilt, and he pleads with her to go away with him. She hesitates between her love for her sons and her love for Temple. The former are about to win when she learns from Craven that her husband really stole to support another woman. Then she turns from him. A whistle outside announces the approach of the prison guards. Granger leaves by a side door, and a few minutes later a shot is heard and the escaped convict has gone before the Highest Judge. The curtain falls with the full understanding that Temple and Anna will find that happiness which they thought was lost to them. The play is of unusual interest, and in spite of the fact that only five characters are required in its development, it is strongly dramatic. The one weakness in the work lies in the character of Anna, which does not always ring true. No woman can love two men at the same time, and no woman will hesitate between the sacrificing of one of two men when she loves one of them, even though he is not her husband. Anna's wavering is unnatural. She is a woman capable of great things, and the fact would force itself upon her that, while she owes a duty to her children, she also owes a duty to an innocent man, and none but a woman devoid of principle could falter in her duty in such a position as Anna finds herself. Her indecision as to whether she shall sacrifice Temple or save her husband is the vulnerable spot in her armor. It prevents the character from being great and detracts from the effectiveness of its portrayal. But in spite of this, Blanche Bates gave a remarkable performance. It is the first time in several seasons that Miss Bates has appeared in conventional dress, and she proved that she is fully equal to most any task that may be placed upon her. At no moment, from her first entrance to the final curtain, was she unequal to the task given her. Her voice, her every action, even her face, betrayed the emotions which swayed the hopeful wife and mother in the earlier scenes, and the outraged wife, despairing mother and well-nigh hopeless woman in the latter scenes. Not once did she over act, but every point was brought out with a firmness and decision that left no doubt as to her being mistress of the situation. Her performance won new honors for her, and added new laurels to the wreath of her manager, Mr. Belasco, evidences of whose master hand are noticeable in the minute details and little niceties always apparent in performances under his direction. Chas. Richman was never seen to better advantage. He made Temple a man of great strength of character and brought out the softer touches that were a part of the inner self of the great man of finance that the president of the Gotham Trust Co. was supposed to be. J. W. Cope, excellent actor as he always is, gave another of his delightful creations, and made Craven a thoroughly human man, who, as confidential adviser to Temple, is unselfish and devoted to the interests of his employer. Howell Hansel played the thankless role of Granger sufficiently well to be an excellent feeder for Miss Bates. Loretta Wells did all that was required of her. There is only one scene used for the three acts, and that represents the library in the home of Burton Temple, at Ossining, N. Y. The cast in full: Burton Temple, Charles Richman; Marshfield Craven, John W. Cope; Robert Granger, Howell Hansel; Anna, Blanche Bates; Mrs. Mason, Loretta Wells. The executive staff for Mr. Belasco is: Benjamin F. Roeder, general director; Charles Emerson Cook, general press representative; John Montague, assistant press representative; Charles E. Gilbert, manager treasury department; William G. Smyth, manager booking department; Ernest Gros, scenic artist; Wilfred Buckland, general stage director; William J. Dean, general stage manager; Henry D. Schaad, in the box office; Albertine Randall Wheelan, costume drawings; E. S. Freisinger, costumer; William Broisch, perruquier; Charles L. Carson, mechanical department; Louis Hartman, electrical department; James Kane, property department. The second week of this attraction began with big attendance.

Miner's Eighth Avenue Theatre (Edwin D. Miner, manager).—Pat White's Gaiety Girls is the current attraction, opening Sept. 28 to a crowded house. Next week, the Avenue Girls.

Savoy Theatre (Frank McKee, manager).—Mater, an American comedy in three acts, by Percy Mackaye, was given its first production at this theatre on Friday afternoon, Sept. 25. To Henry Miller must be given the credit for enabling those who wish, to witness Mr. Mackaye's charming little play. "Mater" is a peculiar blend of many dissimilar elements, involving relationships and situations at times melodramatic, but the farcical predominates throughout. The characters are delightfully contrasted, and the play will appeal to people who care for the lighter style of stage works. The story deals with the political ambitions of a man twenty-two years old, and the part played by his mother, who is a widow, in helping him to realize them. The mother, or "Mater," as he affectionately calls her, proves much the shrewder politician of the two, and leads him to victory in an election when his own methods and impulses would have carried him to certain defeat. The mater's son, Michael, is a radical in politics, a reformer and an idealist, to the point of almost fanaticism. But Michael's mother has no such impractical notions where politics are concerned, and as she had helped Michael's father before him by subterfuge or trickery, to suit the moment's need, so she is prepared to second her son's ambition for the legislature, whether he approves or not. Just prior to the election a senator-elect appears upon the scene, who is a power in the party, and Michael is told that it will be necessary for him to subscribe $4,000 for campaign funds. Michael scouts the idea, denounces the senator and his methods, and insists that his mother dismiss the man at once. It is at this point that the mother decides upon her plan of causing the senator to fall in love with her, and, being a very charming woman, her conquest is quite an easy one. He succeeds in getting her promise to consider him as a suitor, with the assurance that if she deals fairly by him, Michael's election will be certain, in despite of his failure to come forward with the campaign fund contribution. From this time on it is a struggle for her to keep both the senator and Michael in the dark as to her motives and her methods. With Michael's election the truth comes out, and the son repudiates his mother, and says that he will give up his office. But he apparently thinks better of it, and finally is reconciled. The play finishes, but whether the senator returns to complete the conquest of the widow or not, is left to the imagination. Mr. Mackaye's comedy was received by the large audience with every evidence of approval, and the author was called upon for a speech. Isabel Irving, as the "Mater," has never been seen to better advantage, and Charles A. Stevenson, as the Hon. Arthur Cullen, senator-elect, was convincing as the suave politician. Frederick Lewis was properly intense as the idealistic son, and John Junior and Hazel Mackaye played the other two parts. The cast: Honorable Arthur Cullen, Charles A. Stevenson; Michael Bean, Frederick Lewis; Rudolf Verbeck, John Junior; Mary Dean, Hazel Mackaye; Mater, Isabel Irving. There was no performance of "Mater" on Friday night, following the premiere of the same afternoon, but Saturday matinee and night performances of the play were given, and the play will continue indefinitely.

Hudson Theatre (Henry B. Harris, manager).—Robert Edeson, having shelved "The Call of the North," tried another play on New Yorkers Monday evening, Sept. 28, on which date he presented for the first time here Elmer Blaney Harris' four act play, The Offenders, which proved as ineffectual as the former piece. It has a problem—the child labor question this time—and it preaches the stage sermon that many dramatists hug so closely—political graft and its consequences. But there is such crudity shown in its treatment, and Mr. Harris has befogged his story so much that the auditor is floundering about hopelessly before the end of things. The subject is a good one, but the author does not display any great familiarity with it, and it has tumbled down about his ears. Mr. Edeson does some of the best work of his career as a young crook who reforms, and it is regrettable that his acting has not been given a better setting. He played Kilf King, a convict, who is aided to better things by Helen North Street, a reformer, whose husband is the political boss of the State. King goes into details in his efforts to help Helen and Judge Winter jam through the legislature a bill against child labor, and unearths incriminating proof against Boss Street, who has accepted bribes to kill the bill. King finally dies, and Street falls from the high places. Mr. Edeson earned the hearty applause he received, giving a well conceived and artistically presented character study of the tough fellow who is reclaimed by gentleness. Katherine Grey was excellent as Helen, the reformer, and John Flood, as the boss, gave a fine bit of acting. Beatrice Prentice won a triumph in the part of the tough girl. The others gave good aid. The cast: Tomo, T. Tamamota; Mimi Graham, Catherine Countiss; Willie Wilson, Percival Aylmer; Helen North Street, Katherine Grey; Horace Street, John Flood; Margy North, M. Murdosh; Edgar Street, Morgan Coman; Klif King, Robert Edeson; Judge Winter, James Seeley; Mickey, George Falkner; Maud Evelina Paxton, Beatrice Prentice; A Waiter, Vincent de Pascale; Bianco, William Ricciardi; J. W. Graham, Charles Abbott; Flannegan, James Rawley; Annie, Diana Huneker; McCracken, Lawrence Eddinger; Skinny, Clarence Rockefeller; Mumps, Willie Gray; Eddie, Robert Tansy; Chocolate, Washington Jones.

Victoria Theatre (Oscar Hammerstein, manager).—Business continues at top notch here, and the bills presented conform to the Victoria standard. Harry Davenport, Phyllis Rankin and company, in their one act comic opera, entitled "The Naked Truth," head this week's bill. Monday, Sept. 28, was their first appearance here, and there was no doubt of their immediate and well deserved success. The excellent bill this week also lists: Pat Rooney's comedy skit, entitled "Fun in a Boarding House," which is one huge laugh from start to finish; the Empire City Quartette, capital vocalists; Dan Burke and his School Girls; Harry Allister, in his lifelike impersonations of famous men; Lamberti, an impersonator of celebrated musicians, and a clever musician himself; William Macart, an entertaining comedian; the McClain Sisters, singers and dancers, and the second week of the motion pictures of the recent Gans-Nelson fight.

Third Avenue Theatre (Chas. Williams, manager).—When Women Love is the attraction for the current week, opening Monday matinee, Sept. 28, with the following cast: Harold Young, Will W. Crimans; Robert Dayton, David Walters; Eben Skinner, Marcus Moriarty; Duss Roamer, Leonard Delmore; Robert Carlton, E. A. Russ; Judge Dunlop, Fred Wheeler; Phil Watson, Walter V. Milton; Tracy, George Jacobs Peters; Haney, Sam C. Page; Miller, Chas. R. Favor; Dr. Jackson, George Moore; Clerk of Court, Milford Quirk; Madge Carlton, Mindred Hyland; Eleanor De Gray, Leona Leigh; Josie Burnham, Ethel Nason; Ruth, Lillian Wallace; Mrs. Carlton, Agnes Wallace Villa. Next week Le Roy Summer, in "Billy, the Kid." This house is now running Sunday concerts at popular prices. Charles Williams is now local manager, having replaced H. H. Winchell.

Theatre Unique (E. L. Weill, manager).—Business continues good. Excellent moving pictures are shown. The management has concluded to change the vaudeville acts three times each week, thereby gaining a greater variety.

Astor Theatre (Wagenhals & Kemper, managers).—William Hodge, in "The Man from Home," began his seventh week Sept. 28.

Lyric Theatre (Sam S. & Lee Shubert, inc., managers).—Lulu Glaser, under the Shubert management, appeared at this house Monday night, Sept. 28, in the first metropolitan production of Mlle. Mischief, a Viennese operetta in three acts, book by Krantz and Von Sterk, music by Carl M. Ziehrer. The American adaptation was made by Sydney Rosenfeld. The story: Rosette, an artist's model, is in love with and is loved by Andre Claire, an artist. They are both poor, and Andre is dependent upon the generosity of his rich aunt, Susanne. Rosette, on a wager of 50,000 gulden, spends twenty-four hours in the barracks at Fremstadt. To accomplish this she dons a young man's clothes and passes herself off as Freddy Meline, who has been drawn into the service. Many complications arise from this escapade, but in the end all turns out happily. Mr. Rosenfeld has adapted the work well. The lines are bright, the situations excellent, and, in spite of the lightness of the theme, interest is sustained to the end. Many of the musical numbers are of the "swinging, catchy" order, and the piece forms a fine vehicle for the star. Miss Glaser was in her element. Her pleasing personality made Rosette a delightful little person, and her success was emphatic. Her songs: "If You Were Someone Else I Know," "She Knew a Thing or Two" and "Other Things," were all well received. Alexander Clark came in for second honors, while Robert Dempster, W. T. Carlton, Josie Intropodi and Robert Broderick all did good work. Roy Atwell's work as Freddy Meline (a "silly ass" character), is worthy of special mention. Mr. Atwell made the role stand out prominently, but never once became tiresome. Elizabeth Brice sang, danced and acted well, and Gertrude Darrell sang "Le Cœur de Ninon" (in French) splendidly. Miss Darrell possesses a well trained voice of excellent quality, and her vocal efforts in this number called forth rounds of applause, and she was forced to respond to three encores. The others lent good aid. Pretty costumes and good voices added to the attractiveness of the members of the chorus, who were well drilled. The work was handsomely staged. The cast in full: Andre Claire, Robert Dempster; Susanne, Josie Intropodi; Meline, Alexander Clark; Mrs. Meline, Ada Henry; Freddy Meline, Roy Atwell; Col. Romber, Robert Broderick; Lucie, Jean Newcombe; Lieut. Berner, W. T. Carleton; Gaston, Oliver Follansbee; Sergeant Dubaer, Frank Farrington; Paul, Wm. Arnold; Victor, J. Ryder Glyn; Policeman, Mark Harrison; Charlotte, Ethel Intropodi; Lola, Elizabeth Brice; Mimi, Gertrude Darrell; Rosette, Lulu Glaser.

Majestic Theatre (W. L. Rowland, manager).—Father and Son, a four act play by Edgar Selwyn, was given its first New York production Thursday evening, Sept. 24, and after four performances closed. It was lacking in many of the elements demanded in successful works, and Mr. Selwyn seemed to have let the actors' standpoint influence him so potently that the playwright's point of view was lost sight of. A conventional story, developed with only a fair amount of skill, was the handicap under which the play fell. It told of how Billy Filkins, adopted son of "Doc" Filkins, fell in love with Grace Gardner, niece of Arthur Welby, the rich mill owner, and of Billy's destruction of Welby's mill. Welby is a hard taskmaster, and he has ground his help down until they are forced to strike. Billy works in the mill, and to him falls the task of setting fire to the building. He is caught, and it looks as though it would go hard with him. But "Doc" Filkins, in a scene with Welby (the best scene of the play), convinces the mill owner that Billy is his (Welby's) son by a secret marriage, and Welby's heart is softened. Wm. Norris, as "Doc" Filkins, gave an artistic bit of work, and George E. Staley did some splendid acting as Welby. John Westley lived up to his reputation as Billy. The cast: "Doc" Filkins, William Norris; Billy Filkins, John Westley; Arthur Welby, Geo. C. Staley; Mike Clancy, George Derr; Sam Hyslep, Herbert Corthell; Olney, Edward Chapman; Jute Sangerson, Charles Ogle; Mr. Finney, Dwight Allen; John, Nat Royster; Grace Gardner, Madeline Louis; Mrs. Simpson, Alice Gale; Mrs. Clancy, Marion Abbott; Etta Green, Georgie Lawrence; Sallie Pook, Nina Ainscoe; Sarah, June Chapman. Wilbur presented, 24-26, "The Great Question," a modern American play, in four acts, by Frederick Paulding. The entire action takes place in Washington, D. C., and the time is during the first Cleveland administration. Cast: Robert Savernex, A. H. Y., during the past Summer, and it was decided at that time to use it as Miss Bonstelle's starring venture. The story: A gang of land grabbers attempt to force a favorable decision from an upright judge of the U. S. Supreme Court. Alicia is the daughter of Robt. Savernex, the judge, upon whose vote the decision of the Court depends. The land grabbers have resorted to attempted bribery and intimidation, but have failed. The story of the judge's early life becomes known, and it appears that in his youth he had loved an octoroon, and his daughter is her child, although the fact of her illegitimacy has been concealed. Confronted by threatened exposure, the judge is about to consent to render a favorable decision, when Alicia enters, and by the force of her pleading compels her father to adhere to his original resolve to prevent the steal of government lands. Philip Infield, her betrothed, insists upon her marrying him, even after he learns the truth regarding her birth. Alicia, however, is firm, and sends him away. The author has written a strong, absorbing play that holds the audiences' attention completely. Jessie Bonstelle received an ovation at the opening performance, and curtain calls without number. MOVING PICTURES.

New Edison Films.

"Pocahontas" (A Child of the Forest).—We owe a debt to Captain John Smith. A hardy adventurer, sailor, soldier and traveler. He founded Jamestown in 1607. Made friends of the Indians. This story tells of his meeting Pocahontas. Pocahontas accompanied her father, the famous Powhattan, to Jamestown. Treaty of Peace signed. Pocahontas meets and admires Captain Smith. "Kunder-Wacha," an Indian suitor, shows jealousy. Smith establishes order and progress. Quells mutiny. Starts on an expedition. Is trailed by "Kunda-Wacha" and his hostile Indians. "Kunda-Wacha" captures Captain Smith. His companions are killed. Smith about to be tortured. Compass causes wonder. Smith explains how it works. Looked upon as a "Medicine Man." Taken to Powhattan. Powhattan treats Smith royally. Tells Indians he is a friend. Orders him unbound. Invites into his wigwam. Pocahontas renews friendship. "Kunder-Wacha" a witness. Adds to his hate. "Kunder-Wacha" demands Smith's life. Council meets. "Kunder-Wacha" gains his end. Smith sentenced to death. Led to execution. Pocahontas stays the blow. Appeals to Powhattan. Indian law in her favor. Smith is released. Smith promises to send two cannons and a grindstone to Powhattan. Departs for Jamestown accompanied by two Indians. Pocahontas goes part of the way. "Kunder-Wacha" shoots Smith. Escapes. Pocahontas binds Smith's arm. Smith sails. Famine threatens. Pocahontas visits Jamestown. Brings food. Rolfe tells her Captain Smith is dead. She grieves. Rolfe saves Pocahontas from "Kunder-Wacha." Shoots "Kunder-Wacha." Rolfe wins Pocahontas. Obtains Powhattan's consent. Grand wedding. Colonists happy and prosperous.

"Ten Pickaninnies."—For combined and concentrated cuteness, imagine ten pickaninnies turned loose and on mischief bent. "Ten little darkies eating melon fine,
Farmer catches one, leaving but nine.
Nine happy snowballs on a swing elate,
One gets knocked out, then there are eight.
Eight black cherubs, swimming at 'eleven,'
Mammy catches 'Rastus,' that leaves seven.
Seven jolly coons on a tramp play tricks,
Tramp wakes up and nabs one—vamoose the six.
Six bad 'chillun' fooling 'round a hive,
Bees get busy, now there's only five.
Five inky kids crawl thro' a hencoop door,
Farmer scares one away, that leaves four.
Four smoky kids hunting up a tree,
Gun explodes, whiz!—'Skiddoo' the three.
Three black lambs, nothing else to do,
Investigate a deep well, now there's two.
Two cute ebonites with auntie having fun,
'Mandy' gets a ducking, all gone but one.
One chubby coonlet, with a toy popgun,
Monkeyed 'round a 'gator, now there's none."

"Sandy McPherson's Quiet Fishing Trip."—Sandy determines on a fishing trip. For coolness, arrays himself in Highland costume—kilts, bonnet, philibeg, et al., not forgetting a bottle of "Mountain Dew." Sandy finds a good spot. Proceeds to action. Mosquitoes find Sandy. His bare legs a harvest. Sandy fights them. Gets hopping mad. Does a Highland fling. Two country lads discover Sandy. They "don't do a thing to him." Imagine a wrathy, fiery Scot trying to fish, fight mosquitoes, "cuss" in choice Gaelic and attend to two mischievous boys at the same time! In an adjoining field the boys come across a rube asleep, his boots removed to rest his feet. The plot thickens. Boys take the boots. Return to torment Sandy. Boys throw stones. Sandy chases. Boys dodge back. Fasten a boot to Sandy's line and throw overboard. Sandy returns warmed up. Warms some more hauling in his "prize." Sandy lands the boot. Is dumbfounded. Has a happy idea. Puts boot on to protect leg from mosquitoes. Starts to fish for the other. Boys delighted. Invent more mischief. Sandy locates boys. Another chase. They escape again. Dump Sandy's basket into the water. Sandy goes in also. They meet the rube. Put him wise. He goes for help. Boys delighted. Rube returns with constable. They descend upon Sandy as he emerges from bath. Explanations useless. "Caught with the goods." Off to the "cooler." Boys watch Sandy's departure. Then have the time of their lives—fish with Sandy's pole, get fish, eat his lunch, and wind up with an imitation of Sandy's Highland fling.

MIDDLETON'S MILITARY QUARTETTE is the added attraction at the Empire Theatre, Brooklyn. The quartet is under the direction of H. T. Middleton, formerly manager of the Grand Opera House, Brooklyn.

THE Sunday exhibitions have been resumed at the Folly and Gayety Theatres, Brooklyn.

H. J. Meyer Notes.

We opened our show this season at Emerickville, Pa., July 3 and 4, to good business, which has continued. We close in two weeks near Dubois, Pa. Our roster is the same as when we opened, except one change. H. J. Meyer, proprietor and manager; Williard A. Weber, stage manager; John Meyer, ticket seller; Ralph Wagner, contortionist; Sam Newcom, Dutch comedian; Ed. Morill, monologue and banjoist; Bill Richards and family, four in number. Mr. Richards had to leave us on account of having sprained his foot. He will rejoin us next Winter. Williard H. Weber, in his double voice and musical act, is still the headliner. All are well and happy. THE OLD RELIABLE is always on deck.

The Liberty Pictures.

Liberty moving pictures opened their Sunday season at the Majestic Theatre, Brooklyn, Sept. 27. New pictures were shown afternoon and evening, and two performances will be given each Sunday throughout the season. The pictures made a great hit last season, and it is expected that they will again prove one of the most popular forms of Sunday entertainment. A new bill will be shown each Sunday, with the newest pictures. Johnny Nestor will sing at each performance.

Decision on the Nickelette Law.

The New Jersey Nickelette law, which prohibited children under age and unattended from entering places of amusement, was pronounced unconstitutional by Vice Chancellor Garrison, in Jersey City, yesterday.

The decision was made in the case of William Van Horne, arrested for admitting boys to his moving picture house in Jackson Avenue.

The vice chancellor held that the law is void because it exempted picture shows in public and private schools, Sunday schools and churches.

Fight Pictures Strong Attractions.

Realism in the portrayal of a prize fight in moving pictures is appreciated in the presentation of the Gans-Nelson fight films. The entire twenty-one rounds are shown, the gradual weakening of the veteran, Joe Gans, under the blows of Nelson, being depicted with marked realism. Special press showing of the new fight films are made previous to their presentation, and are generally attended by sporting writers.

Lubins Enter Richmond.

The Lubin Theatre, in course of construction for three months in Broad Street, Richmond, Va., next door to the Bijou, will open about Nov. 1. The new ten cent vaudeville and motion picture theatre is built by M. Hofheimer, a local capitalist. It has been leased for ten years to the Lubins, who are extending their chain of theatres into the South. The site and building cost $65,000.

New Pathe Films.

"The Pardon," "A Strange Gale," "Parisian Life in Miniature," "A Basket Party," "The Locket," "Palermo and Its Surroundings," "The Sailor's Sweetheart" and "Spooks Do the Moving."

Moving Pictures in Iowa.

The Comet Amusement company has organized to establish and conduct moving picture and vaudeville theatres along the "Q" road in Iowa, including Creston, Shenandoah, Clarinda and Red Oak.

New Vitagraph Films.

"The Professor's Trip to the Country; or, a Case of Mistaken Identity." "The Gambler and the Devil." "A Romance of the Alps," "Duty Versus Revenge."

MANAGER CAMPBELL, at the Star Theatre, Boston, writes that he has installed a regular lecturer for his feature pictures, in the person of Prof. George Hammond, who scored a marked success with Pawnee Bill at Wonderland Park last Summer. The show at this house does not include vaudeville, the very best pictures and songs obtainable being used exclusively. Extensive decorations are being placed on the front, the feature of which is the gold leafing of the entire dome, which covers over 600 sq. ft. Business is excellent.

J. P. WATSON is remodeling the building at 3623 Longshore Street, Tacony, a suburb of Philadelphia, into a moving picture show.

P. RICHARDS' LETTER.

The Opening of the Circus Season—Review of the Programmes at Circus Busch and Schumann.
Berlin Bureau, 23 Mittel Strasse.

SEPT. 14.

Circus Busch opened on Sept. 10 with Houdini as the feature, and the kind reception which was given to this performer proved the good memory of the audience, since he has not appeared in Berlin for the last five years. Houdini introduced, besides his famous escape from the straitjacket, an entire novelty in the form of his original can trick, where he allows himself to be handcuffed and then to be locked into a big can filled up to the brim with water, from which he comes forth after a couple of minutes unharmed and—minus handcuffs.

As he has a standing offer of 1,000 marks to anyone proving any portion of his exhibition a "fake," the committee in the ring tries its utmost to earn the tempting prize, and submits Houdini, tin can and even the sawdust around them, to a most thorough examination, without success (so far).

Frobel and Ruge, besides Houdini, are the only Americans on the bill. They scored a decided hit in their well known aerial comedy gymnastic act. The Saxon Trio present a sensational strong men's act, wherein they feature the Protos car, which won second prize of the recent auto race around the world (New York-Paris). The identical car with the same chauffeur (Casper Neuberger) runs across a bridge, supported only by the legs of two of the Saxton Bros. (a total weight of about 7,000 pounds). The rest of the programme introduced equestrian acts by Ernest Schumann, Frau Mathilde Renz, Gerard and Fontana, Mariska Recsey, Burkhardt-Footit and Fraulein Meta. The clowning was in the hands of Signor Revelli, Mons. Francois and Bimbo and Marzelli.

Circus Schumann opened on Sept. 12 to a crowded house, featuring Director Albert Schumann in his unexcelled achievements of horse training; also the Rowlands Troupe (late of Ringling Bros.' Show), with their marvelous acrobatic antics on and off the tally-ho. An excellent aerial act was presented by the Roeders-Reinats, and the original Sie Hassan Ben Ali's Arabs did some most creditable tumbling. The only American act I could detect on this bill was Miss Vallzitas, with her trained leopards, and there is no need of mentioning that her act proved exceedingly interesting and pleasing as well. The Olympias presented some classic posing in bronze, and Signor Oreste and Signora Fiochi gave a clever acrobatic performance on horseback. The old time favorite clowns, Adolfo and Coco, proved themselves great laugh provokers, as did also Clown Armando. The riding portion of the programme was represented by Fraulein Nanny, Signora Ricarda, Fraulein Claire, Mlle. de Carre and Mr. Woodson. Herr Bono introduced a novelty act in the form of eight Spanish mules, who showed excellent training and went through their performance as cleverly as any menage horses.

It had been predicted that Hagenbeck's Great Wild Animal Show, which is playing here for the last eight weeks to seating capacity, would hurt the attendance at the circuses, but the excellent patronage at Busch's and Schumann's bears out the fact that Berlin will support more than two shows at the same time, providing they "have the goods."

HIPPODROME (Max Faetkenheuer, manager).—"Romeo and Juliet," by the Faetkenheuer Grand Opera Co., week of 28. The staging of "Lohengrin," last week, was magnificent, and too great praise cannot be accorded Stage Director William J. Wilson. The outside world has no idea of the vast scale on which Max Faetkenheuer is producing these operas, nor the excellent musical effect secured by Musical Director Adolph Leisegang.

COLONIAL (Chas. L. Hertzman, manager).—"The Lily and the Prince" week of 28, by the Mildred Holland Stock Co. "The Provider" drew splendid houses week of 21. "Frou Frou" next week.

It is located on Woodland Avenue, near Fifty-fifth Street, in the residence district. There will be two matinees, from two to five o'clock, and the price to all parts of the house will be ten cents. There will be two evening performances, from 7.30 to 10.30, and the admission will be ten and twenty cents.

"Little Nemo" Captures Philadelphia.

"Litte Nemo," a musical comedy in three acts, music by Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith, founded upon Winsor McCay's sketches under that title, was given a magnificent production at the Forrest Theatre, Philadelphia, Monday, Sept. 28, and from all accounts ran away with the spectacular hit of the decade.

Our advices state that the concensus of opinion is that Klaw & Erlanger have outdone themselves in staging the piece, and the composer and librettist are also highly praised.

Little Gabriel, in the name part, won the lion's share of the acting honors, giving a great performance. Madelyn Marshall, Florence Tempest, Joseph Cawthorne and the others were also warmly praised.

The cast: Dr. Pill, Joseph Cawthorne; Flip, Billy B. Van; Dancing Missionary, Harry Kelly; Little Nemo, Master Gabriel; King Morpheus, W. W. Black; Captain Grouch, Louis F. Barnes; Gladys, Dave Abrams; Blackbeard, Al. Lamar; Red Rover, also Adgie, Sim Collins; Demon Dan, also Mr. Foote, Louis Hart; Officer, Edward B. Kramer; Candy Kid, Florence Tempest; The Little Princess, Aimee Ehrlich; Valentine Fairy, Albertina Benson; Weather Vane, Elphye Snowden; Mrs. Nemo, Rose Beaumont; Sally, also Maggie, Madelyn Marshall; Tilly, Mildred Manning; Betty, Sunshine Ijames.

Grace Van Studdiford in a New Vehicle.

"The Golden Butterfly," with Grace Van Studdiford in the stellar role, was given its first presentation at the New National Theatre, Washington, D. C., Monday, Sept. 28. A large audience gave the star and the piece a hearty reception.

The music is by Reginald De Koven, and will rank as one of his best efforts. It is tuneful, and contains many gems that will prove "catchy." Harry B. Smith deserves credit for the book.

Miss Van Studdiford was in splendid voice, and was charming as Ilma. The "In Paris" duet, with Hubert Wilke, was especially well received. The piece was handsomely costumed and elaborately staged.

The cast: Bertha, Lenora Novasio; Olga, Marion Woods; Count Androssy, Charles Purcell; Petoffy, Louis Casavant; Baron Von Affenkoff, Louis Harrison; Ilma, Grace Van Studdiford; Franz, Hubert Wilke; Wanda, Alice Hills; Hanska, W. J. McCarthy; Tina, Gene Luneska; Callboy, Charles Butler; Head Usher, A. Hanschman; Stage Carpenter, Walter Jenkins; Prince Orloffsky, Louis Casavant; Lazlov, Charles Purcell; His Wife, Gladys Coleman.

Katharine Kavanaugh Opens in "Katrinka."

Katharine Kavanaugh was greeted by a large house at the opening production of "Katrinka," at Albaugh's Theatre, Baltimore, Md., Monday, Sept. 28. Miss Kavanaugh is the author.

The play contains strong dramatic scenes, a pleasing plot and an abundance of good comedy. The stage settings are especially noticeable. The scene in Katrinka's garden and the chapel scene were well done. The play is of the pastoral order.

The cast: Elder Myers, Francis R. Summers; Lisa, Catherine Hilton; Old Jan, Thos. R. Slater; Sleepy Heinie, Oliver C. Ziegfeld; Little Elfie, Grace Honeman; Mrs. Vedder, Bertha Ziegfeld; Oscar Vedder, Henry F. Broening; Edith Warren, Nellie M. Hoffman; Dick Warren, George Darrell; Bruce McCullough, Henry B. Weeks; Williams, his man, James D. Walsh; Katrinka, Katharine Kavanaugh.

"The Outlaws" Beat "Tony, the Bootblack."

The "Jack Sheppard" Co.'s baseball team recently defeated a team composed of members of "Tony, the Bootblack," Co. Both companies are under the same management—A. H. Woods—and both were playing in Chicago the same week.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Geo. Fisher, the catching and base throwing of Tom Kelly, and the work on first base of W. E. Browning, of the "Jack Sheppard" team. Manager Harry Bryant started in to twirl for the "Tonys," but only lasted one inning. Louis Hartman is manager of the "Jack Sheppard" team, and W. E. Browning, captain. They would like to cross bats with other theatrical teams.

"Lasso Land" Produced.

"Lasso Land," a romantic comic opera, was given its first production, on any stage, at the Lake Cliff Casino, Dallas, Tex.,

OUR LONDON LETTER.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

Clipper Bureau, 14 Leicester Street, Leicester Square, London, W. C.

SEPT. 20.

Once more, music hall land is torn by hostilities. The fight of the moment is between the artists and the agents. But it is a new phase of the old quarrel. The managers are sure to be brought in. Here I pause to tell you that the great alliance on which Oswald Stoll has been at work for many months is practically a dead letter. A few weeks ago it seemed certain that he would secure sufficiently strong support for a limited, but still very formidable scheme, and this it was intended to promulgate toward the end of October. Among the many articles that have appeared in English and American papers, I have not read one that correctly enumerated Mr. Stoll's allies, or betrayed the slightest knowledge of the details of the scheme, which was never in the nature of a "combine," which never included the Alhambra, the Empire or the Palace, and which never really involved Gibbons, Barrasford or Macnaghten. It was actually a scheme promulgated by Mr. Stoll, suported by Henry Tozer—representing what are quite inaccurately called the "syndicate halls" seeing that nothing in the nature of a syndicate exists at Durham House Street, merely an accidental identity of interests—and favorably considered by Walter de Freece, as the figurehead of a number of provincial halls. The main idea was to book in sympathy, and so to keep salaries in check—believing, of course, that by by weakening the financial status of the performer he would be more amenable in other respects. But the alliance never approached finality. The "interviews" which were accorded by this important person and the other were so much dust thrown in the eyes of the reporters. Whenever it became a question of settling detail, the various parties essential to the alliance put forward so many reservations of petty selfishness that it was found impossible to go on. I expect the scheme will now be abandoned altogether.

As for the agents, their custom has been to take from the performer ten per cent. on an engagement, and to require him to sign what was known as an "office copy" of his contract, committing him to the payment of ten per cent. practically on all future engagements with the same manager, no matter by whom arranged. For a long time the performer has expressed a determination to reduce the commission, and to procure such a restriction of the requirements of the "office copy" as to make it practically ineffectual. The matter was talked out at a recent meeting of the federation, and it was decided that members should still be permitted to pay commission, up to, but not exceeding ten per cent., but that commission should only be payable on re-engagements that could be immediately traced to the influence and activity of the agent. This proposition was propounded to the agents, who formally decided to ignore it—likewise to ignore the Federation; not to attend its meetings, as invited, not even to apprise the Federation of this decision.

Then "the fat was in the fire," as the proverb is. The federation met and called upon its members to withhold all payments of every kind from the agent, frankly declaring that he should starve till he came to terms, and promising him that the terms should never again be so easy. The ten per cent. is to be arbitrarily reduced to five, and the office copy is to disappear altogether. The agents threaten to treat this action of the federation as a criminal conspiracy, and from this attitude to invoke the law. On general grounds their case is that ten per cent. must stand as their nominal fee, because, first—their expenses are very great; second—the performer, being a bad paymaster, they make many bad debts; third—many managers insist on sharing the commission, so that the agent has no more than five per cent. to reckon with already. As to re-engagements, they declare that the trouble and expense involved in procuring the first engagement are apt to be so great that it is proper for the agent to share in the future earnings of the performer whom he has helped to make famous and prosperous.

There has been an acute quarrel between Alfred Butt and his co-directors of the Palace Theatre. At the recent meeting of the stockholders the chairman, in "accepting for the whole board the responsibility for Maud Allan's engagement," was held to have deliberately detracted from the credit due to Mr. Butt, to whose quick discernment of the possibilities of this act, and brilliant showmanship in its exploitation, the success of the year is actually due. When the chairman proved tardy in amending his statement, Mr. Butt placed his resignation in the hands of the board, and the termination of Maud Allan's engagement would have voluntarily ensued. But now, they are all good friends again.

This is the most prosperous season the London theatres have had for years. "House full" is the nightly statement, almost without exception. "Pete," at the Lyceum, has drawn as many as thirty-three thousand visitors in a week. "Popular prices" prevail here, still, the average is $1,000 a performance; eight performances a week. "Faust" is attracting about two thousand people a performance to His Majesty's, and the receipts run at nearly $2,000 a performance. Nearly $60,000 worth of seats are now held for "What Every Woman Knows," at the Duke of York's Theatre.

A dress rehearsal, at Drury Lane, of "The Marriages of Mayfair," as careful and complete in every detail as the first performance, announced for Monday night will be, once more permits me to keep THE CLIPPER well ahead of the news. Lord Alaric Villiers (so the story runs) contracted a secret marriage with Sylvia Thorne, a dancer. It was an ill assorted union, and quickly came to grief. Sylvia formed an unlawful friendship with Julian Merrodale, an artist. But Villiers was unable to divorce his wife, because he was certain that if he acknowledged so disreputable a marriage, it would cause his wealthy mother to disinherit him, and also prejudice him in the eyes of the charming Lady Margaret Constable, whose hand he would seek. Eventually, however, he arranged with Sylvia to go through a form of divorce abroad, and so felt free to marry Lady Mary, who bore him a child, Nigel, who became a guardsman, and eventually succeeded to the Marquisate of Deerminster. Then the revelation was made by a blackmailing scoundrel, that the Swiss divorce of Villiers and Sylvia Thorne was invalid—that Nigel was illegitimate, and no marquis. His distress was awful, but in the course of time it was discovered that Sylvia died soon after the "divorce," so that when Villiers married Lady Margaret he was unconsciously a widower. The play ends with Nigel's marriage to the daughter of the governor of the Tower of London, which takes place with splendid military surroundings in that historic fortress. Incidental to this play are some wondrous scenes, reproducing fashionable life. There is a brilliant picture of Rumpelmayer's, the West End tea room, with its Bohemian crowd—many of the characters in the play are, by the way, theatrical performers of the "fast" order, and their sporty friends. A sensational episode takes place in an Alpine Pass, so solidly built from footlights to the back wall as to seem real. Albert Chevalier, Lyn Harding, Basil Gill, Eva Moore and Marie George are entrusted with important parts. The vaudeville profession threatens to resent anything it regards as offensive in the caricature.

Martin Harvey produced a one act play, called "The House of Pierre," at the Adelphi on Monday, in conjunction with "The Corsican Brothers." It is the work of Julie Opp and Kate Jordan, and has a part for Miss de Silva, who is not appearing in the piece de resistance. Martin Harvey figures as a blind peasant. To save them from starvation his wife sings in the cafes of Marseilles, and naturally incurs the suspicion of being a light woman. After a tempestuous scene with her husband, she convinces him of her innocence. It is finely done.

Sir Charles Wyndham has returned to town, and is rehearsing "Bellamy, the Magnificent," in which he will appear himself at the New Theatre; likewise "Lady Epping's Lawsuit," in which he will run Mary Moore at the Criterion.

Mrs. D'Oyley Carte is preparing "Iolanthe" for immediate revival at the Savoy, in succession to "The Mikado" and "H. M. S. Pinafore," now alternating on the programme.

Mrs. Kendall has a sharp tongue. A reporter lately asked her opinion about unemployed actresses. She suggested that many young women of the ballet girl type would be very wise to seek situations as domestic servants. This has created much ill feeling.

Fannie Ward will be the next tenant of the Aldwych Theatre. She will produce there a play by Jerome, called "Fanny and the Servant Question."

George Edwardes will try "The Dollar Princess" in Manchester, on Dec. 21, before the London production.

At the Haymarket the four hundredth performance of "Lady Frederick" will soon be reached. But the play must immediately be withdrawn and cannot be carried elsewhere, for Henry Arthur Jones demands both the theatre and Ethel Irving for his new play.

George Edwardes, who stands committed to a production of "The Music Master" here, says of David Warfield: "He is the biggest attraction, and the best actor I ever saw."

When George P. Huntley shortly produces "The Honorable Phil," at the Hicks Theatre, his company will include Eva Kelly, Denise Orme, Elsie Spain, Julia Sandemann and Horace Mills.

When Henry R. Smith, of the Lyceum, opens up at the Waldorf Theatre, it will be with a musical play having Brittany for its background. There are no fewer than three Brittany productions in hand.

"Paid in Full" is a failure at the Aldwych, and is to be withdrawn immediately, although, by general agreement, it is a fine play, and the acting of the men excellent.

Edna May publishes her accustomed denial of the periodical statement that she is about to reappear on the stage.

"Jack Straw" has now been played two hundred times at the Vaudeville.

Granville Barker says: "Our English drama is the London drama, which is a different matter. And it is not really London drama. It is only Mayfair drama, which is a tiny clique. You never get dramas written 'round Bristol or Manchester. That is the sort of thing you get in America."

Norman J. Norman's bankruptcy shows him to be indebted upwards of $25,000; but he claims that his assets are worth upwards of $15,000. The heavy expenses of his tourist agency in the Haymarket, and the failure of his season at the Shaftesbury are named as the causes of his trouble.

Tita Brand, a well known Shakespearean actress, was on Wednesday married to Emile Cammaerts, a Belgian author.

William Austin Hilbert Ware, dramatist and barrister, the husband of Nettie Ware, the actress, was found dead in a Thames side lane last week, his favorite wolfhound having mounted guard over his body. Death proved to be due to the rupture of a blood vessel on the brain.

Esther Palliser, the opera singer, makes her first appearance in vaudeville at the Empire, Holborn, on Monday.

Marie Loftus has accepted American time from William Morris. She sails in January.

Devonport—actually a part of Plymouth—has a new music hall, spacious and beautiful. Alfred Moul, of the Alhambra, is the chairman of its directorate.

Sears, the illusionist, is still a popular attraction to the Hippodrome. He says THE CLIPPER put him in the business.

News of the death, in America, of Mrs. Harry Clifton, recalls the days when she used to appear with her husband in such vocal duets as "Very Suspicious." He was one of the earliest professors of vaudeville here. Mostly he sang what he called "motto songs," such as "Paddle Your Own Canoe" and "Pulling Hard Against the Stream." He was much older than his wife, who, when he died, resumed her maiden name of Fanny Edwards and sang in Gilbert and Sullivan opera.

Donovan and Arnold are very proud of their success in Ireland, at the Belfast Palace. They come to London again next week. Then they return to America aboard the St. Paul, in fulfillment of Morris time. But they have a bunch of contracts calling them to England again next Summer.

Phil and Nettie Peters reach town on Monday. They are now in the North.

Lafayette, the illusionist, is in Birmingham this week.

Yvette Guilbert, who has been very ill, has written a characteristic letter to Oswald Stoll, bidding him expect her at the London Coliseum on Monday. Her illness, she says, has left nothing but a souvenir.

Genee has not even yet completed her leave-taking at the Empire. There will be a special afternoon performance on Tuesday next—the little dancer's valedictory and very last appearance. Rehearsals of the new ballet, entitled "Paris," will begin here at once. Interesting phases of life in the gay city are to be reproduced, eventually, the Artists' Ball Mlle. Kyaksht, the Russian dancer, who succeeds Genee, will figure as the spirit of Paris. Fred Farren is supposed to be Cook's guide, taking an English party 'round town.

Walter Kelly, the Virginia judge, will expound his characteristic humor to Glasgow, at the local Pavilion, next week.

Margaret O'Neill has been sent to jail for six months, for beating her little stage pupil. Robert J. Parr, the director of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has created a pleasant impression by declining to regard this case as typical. The society has no complaint to make against the general training of children for the stage. On the contrary, Mr. Parr drew attention to the kind way in which children are treated by theatrical managers, particularly in theatres where large numbers of children are employed, like Drury Lane. Such theatres have their own schools, they take the most scrupulous care of their children, who enjoy the life immensely, and frequently, as they grow up, win for themselves good positions.

William Dillon, the man of a thousand songs, grows in popularity at the Tivoli and Oxford. Throat trouble interfered with him a little at the outset.

Fred Karno has become half owner of the recently created Hippodrome at Peterborough, a Northern townlet.

Marie Lloyd published the statement that she had been compelled to refuse an American engagement in respect of which she had been offered "the whole of the box office receipts." The newspapers seriously wonder how it can be done, and clearly do not understand that Marie is poking fun at some recent salary-stories.

While Gus Elen and Albert Chevalier are discussing the origin of the stage coster, and their relative claims to priority, it may be pointed out that a much older coster comedian than either of them, Hyram Travers, still flourishes, and that the first coster song was sung half a century ago by Alfred Vance, "I'm a Chickaleary Bloke."

Cissy Loftus is having trouble in respect to her $1,000 a week engagement at the London Coliseum. It appears that so long ago as 1898 Cissy contracted with the directorate of the Alhambra to appear there for $425 a week. The agreement was held in abeyance, first that Miss Loftus might gratify a wish to appear in America; secondly, that she might play in "Faust" with Irving. But the Alhambra directorate maintains that it is still operative, and that Cissy must play for them before she can figure at another music hall. The courts are prepared to hear the case, but meanwhile will not prohibit Cissy's immediate appearance at the Coliseum. In the event, the Alhambra directorate will have to sue for damage sustained.

AT LAST DOCTOR FOUND CURE.

"Our baby boy broke out with eczema on his face when one month old. One place on the side of his face, the size of a nickel, was raw like beefsteak for three months, and he would cry out when I bathed the parts that were sore and broken out. I gave him three months' treatment from a good doctor, but at the end of that time the child was no better. Then my doctor recommended Cuticura. After using a cake of Cuticura Soap, a third of a box of Cuticura Ointment, and half a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, he was well, and his face was as smooth as any baby's. He is now two years and a half old, and no eczema has reappeared. Mrs. M. L. Harris, Alton, Kan., May 14 and June 12, 1907."

SCOTT LESLIE and "The Girl in the Purple Mask" opened their season week of Sept. 14, at Thunderbolt Park Casino, Savannah, Ga., and are meeting with success.

Theatrical Mechanical Association.

T. M. A. News.

The T. M. A. Lodge No. 6, of St. Paul, had the pleasure of initiating into their order Frank (Slivers) Oakley, who played a brief engagement at the Orpheum Theatre.

He was called upon for a speech, and responded with a short, but very intelligent address.

The opening of the show season has put new life into the members, and they expect to increase their membership to four hundred by Jan. 1, 1909.

From Cincinnati Lodge.

At our last regular meeting Ren Mulford Jr. was elected an honorary member of No. 33. Bro. Mulford has been for years a friend of the profession, and the boys of our lodge, appreciating his worth, wished to honor him as stated above. In conjunction with his present business, Mr. Mulford is the Cincinnati correspondent of THE CLIPPER. All brothers playing Cincinnati will, in case of illness, notify our physician, Bro. Ed. H. Moss, M. D., No. 15 Garfield Place, this city. President Chas. W. Schweitzer, after an extensive tour through the East, has again assumed his duties as ticket agent at the Columbia Theatre. Cincinnati Lodge, No. 33, extends a hearty invitation to all brothers visiting the city to call at its club rooms, 515 Walnut Street. Bro. James Robinson is always in attendance. Be sure to call. The visiting book is on the table—put your name

MAX BROOKS, of Brooks and Vedder, sends the following: "A great surprise was given to the performers while in Seattle, recently, when a social was given by the Seattle Lodge, No. 62, on Thursday evening, at their lodge rooms. Lunch and refreshments were served during the entertainment, and more than three hundred professionals and their friends had a very enjoyable evening. An orchestra of seven pieces furnished the music, and the programme was a winner. Acts from the Orpheum, Pantages and the Star gave a helping hand to make the social a success. Among the visiting performers were: Mai Scheftels, Brooks and Vedder, Reiff Brothers, Arthur Elwell, Ed. La Vine, Rube Welch and company, Tops, Topsy and Tops, Abdallah Troupe, Eddie Roesch, Keeley and Parks, the Country Choir, the Great Lester, Clemenso Bros. and Three Marvelous Heumans. To H. L. Leavitt, president of the lodge, and representative of Sullivan & Considine in Seattle, is due the credit of making the social a success. Mr. Leavitt made a few remarks, and appointed M. Weinstock, business manager and attorney for the Pantages circuit, chairman. Mr. Leavitt spoke on the subject of friendship. He was tendered a round of applause, and could have taken an encore. M. Weinstock accepted the position of chairman, and made an opening speech on the subject of the T. M. A.'s, and finished by saying the White Rats have the right idea, a contract that is good for the performer as well as the manager. The speech was well received. Dr. Ghent, the T. M. A. physician, was called upon, and he spoke on the subject of City Fathers, as he is a candidate for the assembly this coming election. Chairman Wienstock fined him two dollars for handing out 'salve' in a different form. Manager C. Ritter, of the Orpheum; J. McDonald, of the Grand Theatre; J. Page, of the Moore Theatre, and F. Donellan, manager of the Star, were among the speakers of the evening. The committee in charge were: W. J. Morgan, E. Levy, G. Marsh, W. Fitzgerald, J. Townsend, M. Brooks. All the ladies present received flowers, and not until early dawn did this happy gathering end. Seattle Lodge, 62, is only one year old, and has 225 members in good standing, and they look for a membership of 500 in another year. Several members of Denver Lodge have donated five hundred acres of land in Colorado to the Grand Lodge, for a site for the National Home of T. M. A.'s, and as soon as the selection is made, work will commence on building the home. Seattle Lodge, 62, subscribed $1,000 toward the home. No. 62 is booming, and performers who visit Seattle are always welcome to their lodge rooms."

ALL MEMBERS of Newark, O., Lodge of T. M. A., No. 83, are requested to send their address to Secretary Matt Smith at once, and notify him of any changes of address.

SAM RICE, Thro' the Agency of PAT CASEY, Presents in Vaudeville,

THE LULU BEESON TRIO

A Magnificent Scenic Production, Equipped with Marvelous Electric Effects and Handsome Wardrobe, entitled "A NIGHT IN EL PASO" Introducing the Famous Lady Dancer, LULU BEESON, and WARD and WEBER, Companion Dancers.

HANK, in NEW YORK CLIPPER, says: "'A Night in El Paso,' by the Lulu Beeson Trio, was about the best of its kind seen here in a long time. * * * The ending in one, with the three in a hard shoe dance that arouses the audience to enthusiasm, rounds out one of the cleverest and most finished acts of animated footwork that this town has seen for a long time. The audience appreciated its cleverness, and there were many recalls."

VARIETY says: "The finish in 'one' consists of hard shoe dancing by the trio. Weber and Ward prove themselves to be one of the best dancing teams in vaudeville. Their dancing is easy and graceful. A pleasing appearance and good dressing creates a better impression than the intricate steps accompanied by an over-abundance of hard work would. Miss Beeson is noted as a dancer of this description. She easily keeps pace with the boys. The Lulu Beeson Trio is the best act of its kind yet seen."

YOU CAN'T STOP

A good thing, especially a song, if it has the right sentiment and a good melody. A few weeks ago we advertised a number of songs, and among them was BERT FITZGIBBON'S and GEO. CHRISTIE'S beautiful waltz ballad,

YOU CAN'T STOP YOUR HEART FROM BEATING, FOR THE GIRL YOU LOVE

ALMOST EVERY PERFORMER THAT RECEIVED A PACKAGE OF MUSIC IN ANSWER TO THAT AD., SENT FOR AN ORCHESTRATION OF THIS NUMBER, AND WE ARE RECEIVING LETTERS DAILY, TELLING US WHAT A GREAT SUCCESS IT IS—AND IS IT A WONDER!!

READ THE CHORUS:

You can't stop the sun from beaming,
You can't stop the bird's refrain,
You can't stop yourself from dreaming,
You can't stop the drops of rain.
You can't stop the stars from gleaming
Up in the heaven above,
And you can't stop your heart from beating
For the girl you love.

It strikes a responsive chord, and the melody is one of those that "creeps into the heart" and makes your audience "sit up and take notice." It is certainly a novelty to hear a comedian sing a ballad after two or three comic songs, and take several encores with it; this is what the author, BERT FITZGIBBON, of the Fitzgibbon-McCoy Trio, is doing with it in Brooklyn this week.

Now Ready, Beautiful Slides by DE WITT C. WHEELER. Order from him direct.

The above will be sent FREE—All we ask of those we do not know is an up-to-date program. NO CARDS or AMATEUR PROGRAM will be accepted.

OHIO.

Cincinnati.—The advent of Autumn is still delayed. A mid-Summer sun has been beating down upon parched, dusty old mother earth. The nights are so torrid that theatrical business is suffering a shrinkage all around. Manager Harry Rainforth, of the Grand Opera House, has returned home, and he ran into weather which made him long for his Long Island Summer abode.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE (Rainforth & Havlin, managers).—Klaw & Erlanger will present Guy Standing and Theodore Roberts, Sept. 28, in "The Right of Way." Last week "The Honeymoon Trail," with its great string of "broilers" and a La Salle Theatre record, was accorded a welcome greeting. It was musically reminiscent of "The Time, the Place and the Girl." Harry Perkins, as Perkins, was the big figure in the fun making. Dorothy Brennen, a Cincinnati girl, who has moved upward in the scale of popularity and success, since the days she played minor roles in the Pike Stock Co., was seen in the role of the pickleman's sweetheart. Alma Youlin, Olive Vail, Bessie Merrill and William Bechtel were others in important parts, while Bert Baker's character work was simply fine. Ethel Barrymore comes Oct. 5, in "Lady Frederick."

LYRIC (Heuck Opera House Co., directors).—William Faversham will be seen Sept. 28. Charles Frederic Nirdlinger's play, "The World and His Wife." Last week, "The Wolf" pleased. Walter Hale's McDonald towered far above all other characterizations. The McTavish of Thomas Findlay was good. Frances Ring made a sweet Hilda. William Courtenay made good as Jules Baubler. The Patiste of Sheridan Block, and the George Huntley of William Rosel were both clever interpretations. Lew Fields comes Oct. 4, in "The Girl Behind the Counter."

OLYMPIC (George F. & Luella Forepaugh Fish, managers).—The Forepaugh Stock company will stage "The House of a Thousand Candles" Sept. 27, after a week of Margaret Anglin's "Zira." This drama of the Boer war was well presented, with Ida Adair in the title role. Frank Sylvester was seen as the Rev. Gordon Clavering. Mary Lawton did well with the unsympathetic part of Ruth Wilding. May Louise Algen's Lady Constance Clavering was well played. "The Three of Us" will be the offering Oct. 4.

WALNUT STREET (Anderson & Ziegler, managers).—M. M. Theise's musical review, "Wine, Woman and Song," will open Sept. 27. The Rays—Johnny and Emma—in "King Casey," enjoyed their reign last week. They are prime favorites and always pack the house. Dan Coleman, Frank Rose, Lester Mason, John Morris and George Mismar helped the piece along its musical laugh-studded way. "Under Southern Skies" follows Oct. 4.

COLUMBIA (Anderson & Ziegler, managers).—Hal Davis and company comes Sept. 27, in "Pals." Others on the bill will include: Johnny McVeigh and his College Girls, Mabelle Adams, Rockaway and Conway, Carroll and Baker, Fonda, Bell and Fonda, Galletti's performing monkeys, and Le Roy and La Vanion. Last week's bill was pleasing, and Gus Edwards' "School Days" made a hit. Lillian Gohn was the gingery kid in the sketch, and her Sassy Little was a scream. The Bootblack Quartette won numerous encores. An eleventh hour addition to the bill, which took the place of the Frederick Musical Trio, was Edwin Rood and company, in a specialty, "American Humor and Hindoo Magic." Business fairly good.

HEUCK'S OPERA HOUSE (Heuck Opera House Co., directors).—Owen Davis' thriller, "On Trial for His Life," will be seen Sept. 27. "The Montana Limited" has been seen here before. Frederick Eckart, in the dual role of the twin brothers, plays the parts in clever style. Ezra Walck, Rex De Rosselli, Gretchen Sherman and Blanche Dixon were notably good. Business fair. "Jack Sheppard" comes Oct. 4.

LYCEUM (Heuck Opera House Co., directors).—W. F. Mann's "Shadowed by Three" will be presented Sept. 27, and Henelli, the magician, is starred. Anthony E. Wills' "The Lost Trail" held the boards last week, to fair business. Franklin Woodruff was seen in the role of Bud Larrabee. Ernest Ottke, a Cincinnati boy, made a hit in the juvenile role of Percy Ainsworth. Others who contributed largely to the success of the presentation were: Grace Bayley, Grace Childers, William Owens, John Grey and Henry Grady. "Montana" Oct. 4.

PEOPLE'S (Heuck Opera House Co., directors).—The Empire Burlesquers are due Sept. 27, with Roger Imhof. The Dessauer & Dixon Show, "The Frivolities of 1918," made the biggest bit of the season at this gold mine over-the-Rhine. Anna Chandler, as Anna Held; Maurice Wood, as Eva Tanguay, and Clem Givens, in a scene from "The Girl of the Golden West," were particularly good. May B. Wright and her cluster of broilers, in "Make Me Laugh," certainly succeeded. Dennis Mullen carried off the lion's share of the honors for comedy. Business good. The Rollickers come Oct. 4.

CHESTER PARK (I. M. Martin, manager).—The last of the amateur vaudeville carnivals will be given Sept. 27. Irene Rittenhouse, a child prodigy, whose remarkable singing last week secured for her the prize of a free musical education, will be heard. M. Ronda, Lillian Hafford, Stephen Murray, Barry and Barry, the Burler Trio and Bert Baker were the other winners of trophies promised for clever work.

AUDITORIUM (H. D. Massie, manager).—Will Price remains as the vocalist at this O. T. Crawford picture house.

STANDARD (R. K. Hynicka, manager).—George W. Rice is coming Sept. 27, with the Rose Hill English Folly Co. Fred Irwin's Majestics won immediate rank as the best show of the year at this new house of burlesque. It was billed as "a $2 show at regular prices," and the declaration did not prove the extravaganza of press agentry. Clara Rackett's Salome dance was artistic. The whole tone of the show was clear and healthy. Gus Fay and Will King are funny comedians. Evelyn Walker, Lillie Carter and Marie Hartman all help out materially. Business good. "Fads and Follies" are coming Oct. 4.

NEW ROBINSON (S. E. Overpack, manager).—Despite the heat on several occasions last week, the evening sale of tickets was stopped. No such show for a dime has ever been offered in Cincinnati. Dooley Donavin, the magician, will be the new face in the vaudeville Sept. 27. Eva Prout, who made a hit last week, remains. So do the Moras. The moving pictures are the finest offered in the city. The Casino company is certainly making good.

GOSSIP OF THE LOBBY.—Charley Puls is again taking tickets at the Standard..... Mort H. Singer and Harry Askin came to town to strike "The Honeymoon Trail."..... The Princess Amusement Co. cut out the Salome dance last week.....Otto Ernest Schmid is back from Europe, and the German Theatre Co.'s season at the Grand will begin Oct. 4.

Columbus.—At the Southern (Wm. Sanders, manager) "Ticey" pleased good business Sept. 21-24. "The Right of Way" entertained good sized houses, 25, 26; "The Waltz Dream" 28-30, "The Three Twins" Oct. 1, the Cohan & Harris Honey Boy Minstrels 2, 3.

KEITH'S (W. W. Prosser, manager).—A good bill, headed by the Marcel pictures, pleased good business. week of 21. Bill for week of 28, Bessie Wynn, the Singing Colleens, Martinez and Martinez, Julie Ring and company, Arthur Rigby, Wilton Bros., Kelly and Barrett.

GAYETY (Al. Wiswell, manager).—The Golden Crook attracted good business week of 21. For week of 28, Sam Scribner's Show.

OLENTANGY PARK (J. W. Dusenbury, manager).—The park closed for the season 26.

INDIANOLA PARK (C. E. Miles, manager),—The Zarrows, in an endurance bicycle race, will be the attraction for week of 28.

NOTES.—The Grand Circuit Races, which will continue until Oct. 2, have attracted big crowds.....Mrs. Coates, of "The Watermelon Trust," which was playing at Keith's the past week, received a telegram, notifying her of the death of her brother in Pittsburg, 22. She left the act to attend the funeral. .....Contracts were let the past week for the completion of the Colonial. Manager Howell hopes to open the house in November.

Toledo.—At the Valentine (H. R. Smith, manager) "The Right of Way" opened the season at this theatre, to crowded houses, Sept. 21, 22. Lew Dockstader's Minstrels 26, "Three Twins" 28, 29.

LYCEUM (E. R. Kelsey, manager).—"Wine, Woman and Song," despite the excessive heat, played to packed houses, 17-19. "Under Southern Skies" played its eighth annual engagement, to liberal patronage, 20-23. "The County Chairman" 24-26, "Buster Brown" 28-30.

BURT'S (Jack Tierney, manager).—"The Montana Limited," 17-19, and "Sold Into Slavery," 20-23, were both plays of more than ordinary merit, which drew well. Dark 24-26, "The Outlaw's Christmas" 27-30.

Johnny Ray officiated as umpire, he being out of the Rays' line-up, owing to an injured leg, received while playing ball in Toledo.....Wright Huntington and Our Own Stock Co. scored a decided hit with the playgoing public of Lima, in "The Charity Ball." FILM! MOVING PICTURE THEATRES. ARE YOU ON THE FIRING LINE? Meet the Enemy with Your Service Installed here. FILM

Our aim is to place you in the ranks of our customers in all parts of the United States, who have been successful by means of our large selection of interesting film and the prices made them to meet all competitors.

I want your business. Why have my customers all been successful? I have not gotten rich in the film renting business and I am the oldest renter in the business today. Ask any of my customers the quality of service they have always received and they will state emphatically that I have the largest assortment of first class subjects and that my service is better and prices 50 per cent. cheaper than any of my competitors. I have purchased large quantities of film and I am not in any trust but I have film in quantities of all makes, and have the finest assortment of subjects ever presented to the American exhibitor. I will not tell you if you discontinue your business with me that you will not be served by any others. I will not close your show, but if you will give me a chance, I will make you successful. I want a customer in every city in the United States where his opposition is showing film before him. I devote my entire time to selecting nothing but interesting subjects and will assure you there is not a dull moment in my service. I will ship the film to you and if it is not just as I say it will not cost you a red penny. If I could only have a heart to heart talk with you and explain why you have been complaining about your film service and could show you the number of film exchanges who have small quantities of film and only desire to hold your business a few days, and then show you the large quantities of film I am receiving daily, you will say I have the largest and best equipped and systematized film renting establishment in the world. I want good reliable agents to handle my film on a percentage basis. If you are not a live one, do not answer my advertisement. Do not write me. You must be thoroughly honest and be in a position to give me the best of reference as to character and reliability. Only those who are thoroughly in touch with the trade in general and conditions of the film renting business be accepted as my agents. I have several agents who are now reaping the harvest, earning from two to three hundred dollars weekly. I want all parties who can furnish me the above reference to write if they feel they can handle film in quantities. I have 5000 reels of film on hand and receive every day large quantities which I will ship my agents the same day I do my customers. The season is now open and I offer the following prices:—

[price table illegible]

If you desire the films sent all in one shipment add $1.00 additional for each reel, for example, If you desire 2 films a week in one shipment the price will be $4 plus $2 or $5 per week, but if you desire 14 films all in one shipment the price will be $20 plus 14 x $1)—$34 or $6 per week.
